FEAR MASSACRE BY JAPANESE

Russians Will Resist at Port Arthur to Last Drop of Blood.

STOESSEL SO ORDERS

Heavy Bombardment Heard Is Believed to Precede Assault, Probably Proceeding.

RULES OF WAR VIOLATED

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHEFOO, Sept. 18.—Another grand assault is either occurring at the present time or is imminent at Port Arthur, it is believed here. This opinion is based on the very heavy bombardment of the Russian stronghold that occurred on September 16, likely a prelude to an assault.

According to Lieut. Prince Radzivil of the Russian army, who reached here last night from Port Arthur bearing dispatches from Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel to Gen. Kuropatkin, the men of both armies are absolutely venomous in their antagonism. Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel has addressed his garrison saying that the present mood of the Japanese indicates clearly the necessity of resisting them to the last drop of Russian blood because, if the Japanese soldiers entered the fortress, it undoubtedly would be impossible for their officers to control them and prevent a massacre. For this reason Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel is making no objection to civilians leaving. When the 300 women who are in Port Arthur engaged in hospital work were advised to leave, they replied that they would rather face the possibility of massacre than desert their posts.

Awful Stench from Dead.

In consequence of the fact that flags of truce are ignored numbers of Japanese dead, who have been lying on the slopes of the hills of the northeast defenses for weeks past, are still unburied, and the stench in Port Arthur from decomposing bodies, when the wind is in the right direction, is almost unendurable.

In the course of the assaults which took place in the four last days of August, two companies of Japanese soldiers, according to Prince Radzivil, found themselves at the mercy of the Russians and hoisted a white flag. To this, however, the Russians paid no attention, and continued to fire rapidly into the helpless ranks of the enemy. In the meantime Japanese troops in the rear of the companies that had raised the white flag, saw what their comrades had done and expressed their disapproval of the surrender by firing into their rear. Six hundred men were annihilated. The dead fell among the decomposing bodies of previous assaults. For days afterward the wounded men in this area raised fluttering handkerchiefs in their hands in pleas for help, but the Russians were afraid to venture out to give succor. Within a week the last arm had made its last unregarded prayer for help, but the shambles was a quiet but ghastly field of horror.

Had Fought to the Death.

Among the heaps of dead the prince saw two soldiers, one a Russian and the other a Japanese, lying locked in a death embrace. The teeth of the Japanese were sunk in the Russian's throat, while the Russian had forced two of his fingers into the eye-sockets of his antagonist.

Continuing his interview with the correspondent the prince said: "The stories in circulation concerning the shortage of ammunition and provisions at Port Arthur are not true. There is an abundance of ammunition for both large and small arms and plenty of preserved food. The use of Chinese shells was merely a saving measure. I left Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel in the best of spirits. He is encouraged by the heroic example set by the wounded men, of whom 5,000 out of the original 8,000 in hospital have returned to the front. Madame Stoessel, wife of the general, is at the head of the Red Cross work in Port Arthur. The soldiers consider her their guardian angel. The garrison is maintaining a strong and devoted martial spirit and has great confidence in Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, who is cheered by the men when he rides along the lines.

"Individual acts of heroism during the fighting have been numerous. Lieut. Petroff became surrounded by some Japanese soldiers, whom he fought successfully until his sword broke. He then used his fists upon the Japanese, but their bayonets quickly put an end to his resistance. Before his sword broke Petroff succeeded in incapacitating eight of his antagonists, but he was wounded all over his body.

"One company of Russian troops were occupying a perilous outpost and when

JAPANESE SHELL MUKDEN DEFENSES

MOVEMENT EAST BY CHINESE

LONDON, Sept. 19.—It is asserted in a dispatch from Tokyo to the Express that the Japanese are vigorously shelling the Russian positions at Mukden, preparatory to a general advance and endeavoring, by a wide turning movement, to cut off Gen. Kuropatkin's retreat. The Japanese armies, the dispatch adds, are disposed in the same relative positions as in the fighting before Liao-Yang.

MUKDEN, Sept. 18.—The armies having recovered from the effects of the recent fighting before Liao-Yang, an early development of the situation may be expected. A mysterious movement eastward is on foot on the part of bands of young Chinese suitable for military service. All the leading Chinese who have aided the Russians are leaving Mukden.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 18.—Gen. Sakanaroff has reported to the general staff, under date of September 17: "The Manchurian army was nowhere engaged on September 16 or 17. The arrival of considerable reinforcements is noticeable at the advance posts along the whole of the enemy's front, and especially near the village of Bianiupuza, and east of the railway toward the Yentai mines."

It is announced from Mukden that both the Russian and the Japanese generals have promised to respect the tombs and palace there.

PITTSBURGH PLANTS WILL FURNISH STEEL

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Plants located in the Pittsburgh district will turn out the steel to be used in the construction of the New York Edison Company's huge new power station, which is about to be built in this city at an estimated cost of $5,000,000. Upward of 10,000 tons of steel will be employed. The material will be rolled at the Carnegie Homestead mills and the American Bridge Company's Ambridge plant will complete the fabrication.

The New York Edison plant will be equipped to produce about 112,000 horse-power. The machinery will include 14 5,500-kilowatt alternating current 40-cycle generators, to run at 6,600 volts each to be directly connected to a steam turbine of about 8,000 horse-power capacity. There will be 72 horizontal water tube boilers of a nominal capacity of 650 horse-power each and guaranteed to stand a 50 per cent overload; 15 boiler feed pumps, 14 surface condensers and a 5,000-kilowatt exciter.

Delivery on the steel will commence late in the spring and the plant is expected to be completed by the last of next year. Anthony N. Brady, one of the chief.

SLIGHT VICTORY BY RUSSIA AND PEACE WOULD FOLLOW

Certain Members of Ministry Favor Cessation of Hostilities at First Opportunity—Peace Party Is Growing.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 18.—While preparations are being made for a campaign of at least another year against Japan in Manchuria and while troops are being gathered from every quarter of the empire to be sent to the assistance of Gen. Kuropatkin, the advocates of peace at any price are bestirring themselves to greater activity than ever before. At the present time they have received a considerable accession to their ranks, from among those who have heretofore advocated peace with honor.

It is reasonably certain that if Kuropatkin should achieve even a slight success against Oyama, the chances of a peace proposition being submitted to Tokyo would be very good. Certain members of the ministry are known to be strongly in favor of a cessation of hostilities at the first opportunity.

As it is known the czar is beginning to take a more determined stand against the usurpation of the governmental functions by the clique of grand dukes, who, it is said, were chiefly instrumental in plunging the empire into a war, for which it was poorly prepared, owing to the mismanagement of officials appointed by the grand dukes, the opponents of war feel that the prospects of a successful outcome of their efforts are greatly increased.

Similar exports made during July aggregated about 8,500 tons, so that the increase is about 15 per cent.

The exports of wire in August amounted to 3,825 tons, more than 50 per cent increase when compared with the previous month's foreign shipments. ## SIXTY JEWS MASSACRED.

Repetition of the Kishineff Horror in Russian Poland Town—Dead Bodies Mutilated.

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—Refugees are still arriving on the German frontier from the town of Sosnowice, in Russian Poland, and each party brings a new tale of the abuses suffered by the Jews in the recent anti-Semitic riots at that place.

It was a repetition of the Kishineff horror, and just as in that case, the police authorities refused to extend any protection to the Jews. Reports of the number of dead vary, some placing the number at 40, others at 60. The bodies of the dead are said to have been frightfully mutilated.

PRINCE BISMARCK DIES UNHONORED

Had Waited for Appreciation by His Sovereign Which Never Came.

WAS TRAINED BY HIS FATHER

FREDERICHSRUHE, Sept. 18.—Prince Herbert Bismarck died this morning. The end was painless. Since he ceased to be foreign minister on the retirement of his father in 1890, Prince Herbert Bismarck had taken part in public affairs only as a member of the reichstag. His attitude had been that of a man not appreciated by his sovereign and who was waiting in the background for an opportunity to resume his career.

His delivery as a parliamentary speaker improved year by year. He always declined to join any political group, steadfastly calling himself an independent. His haughty and imperious manner in early life, when he was ever conscious of the fact he was the son of the most powerful statesman in Europe, softened in later life.

Prince Bismarck's father trained him for his successor as chancellor of the German empire, and advanced him rapidly in the diplomatic service until at the age of 40 he was minister of foreign affairs, in which positon he took part in nearly every important international transaction.

An incident that nearly wrecked Prince Herbert's career and that caused the old chancellor great annoyance was Prince (the count) Herbert's elopement with Princess Carolath Beuthen, the wife of Prince Karl, the head of that distinguished Silesian house. Count Herbert lived with the princess in Southern Italy for a few weeks and then, at the command of his father, returned to Germany. The princess afterward was divorced and has since died.

The Late Prince Herbert Bismarck.

The title of Prince Bismarck and the large fortune of the deceased will go to his seven-year-old son. Emperor Frederick gave to Prince Bismarck extensive forests in Frederichsruhe, which have since increased in value and the chancellor gave to Prince Herbert $2,400,000 in securities and cash. The estate is now estimated to be worth $4,000,000 exclusive of the lands.

Prince Bismarck was born in 1849. He studied law in the Berlin and Bonn universities, served in the Prussian army as a lieutenant of reserves during the Franco-German war of 1870-71, and was severely wounded at the battle of Mars-La-Tour. In 1873 Herbert became an official of the department of foreign affairs and was assistant to his father, then chancellor. He was attached to the German legations at Berne and at Vienna from 1874 to 1877. Later on the deceased became councillor of the German embassy in London and subsequently occupied the same position at St. Petersburg. In 1884 he was appointed minister extraordinary at The Hague, and in 1885 he became under secretary of state in the department of foreign affairs.

He was married in 1892 to Countess Margaret Hoyes of the Hungarian nobility, and after the death of his father he inherited the title of prince. He leaves five children, two girls and three boys.

Died While Singing in Church.

TRIP SATISFIED MR. FAIRBANKS

Candidate Pleased With His Tour Through West Virginia.

LIKES CAMPAIGNING

Is Feeling Well and Will Engage Vigorously in the Contest to the Finish.

HE IS DOING NO BOASTING

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 18.

"I do not care to express any opinion as to the political outlook at this time. I am just attending to my own knitting," said Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, the Republican vice presidential candidate, as he emerged from the restaurant of the Willard hotel this evening with a good dinner tucked under his vest and a look of general satisfaction on his countenance.

Senator Fairbanks arrived this morning from Parkersburg, where he helped open the Republican campaign yesterday. He will leave in the morning for Delaware and deliver an address at Dover in the afternoon and one at Wilmington in the evening. On Tuesday evening he will speak at Baltimore and on Wednesday evening at Reading, Pa. From Reading he goes to Chicago and on September 23 he leaves there for a tour of the Pacific coast.

Campaigning seems to agree with the senator, for he never looked better in his life. His cheeks have a healthy color and his eye is bright. He shakes hands with his callers with a vigor that impresses one with the idea that he is in good health and that he practices physical culture.

Voice None the Worse.

On Friday Senator Fairbanks made 13 short speeches during his trip through West Virginia and on Saturday evening he delivered a lengthy address at Parkersburg; and yet his voice does not sound the worse for wear.

"Campaigning does not tire me," said he. "I enjoy it. I am feeling well and look forward to the work of the remaining weeks of the campaign with pleasure. Everywhere I have gone I have been splendidly treated by the local committees and the people have been very kind. On this West Virginia trip Senator Scott was very solicitous about me and feared that I would be exhausted by the trip and unable to make my speech in Parkersburg. But I told him not to bother about me, as I was all right and could stand it well.

"Yes, 13 speeches in one day is a pretty good day's work, but I did not feel any ill effects of it. Our meeting in Parkersburg was a fine one. No, I would not care to make any comment on the political situation there. I do not care to discuss the outlook at this time. I am just attending to my own knitting."

Satisfied With West Virginia.

While the senator could not be induced to give a political interview, yet it was plain from his manner that he is very well satisfied with the situation, not only in West Virginia, but in the entire country. Furthermore, the idea that Fairbanks is a human iceberg is an entirely erroneous one. He is proving himself a good mixer and there is nothing repellant about his manner. While talking with some friends in the lobby of the Willard this evening, a congressman, Morgan of Ohio, approached and introduced a constituent.

"I am glad to see you," said the senator to the congressman. "How are things out in Pennsylvania?"

In an instant the candidate saw that he had made a mistake and he hastened to correct himself by placing the caller correctly.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, you're from Ohio, aren't you? For a moment I mistook you for Representative Connell of Pennsylvania," and he proceeded to talk about matters local to the congressman's district in a manner that perfectly "squared" him for the mistake. It was an error that occurs often as every candidate knows, but it is not often so readily and smoothly repaired as it was in this case. A congressman does not relish being mistaken for another man.

FIGHTING TOO RAPID FOR THEM

DAVIS GOES ON STUMP

"Uncle Gassaway" Is to Make a Speech at Meeting to Be Held in Wheeling on Thursday.

DAYTON WILL BE A BUSY MAN

By WALTER J. CHRISTY.
(Staff Correspondent.)

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., Sept. 18.—The whirlwind campaign started by the Republicans of West Virginia has dazed the Democrats. They did not think it possible for Senator Fairbanks to stir up the enthusiasm he has in the mountain state. Arrangements had been made to put the Democratic spellbinders to work at a meeting to be held in Wheeling on Tuesday. The date has now been changed to Thursday and runners have been sent out to drum up a crowd.

"Uncle Gassaway" Davis is to be the principal orator at the Wheeling meeting. He will be assisted by Senator John J. Cornwell, the Democratic candidate for governor; Charles A. Towne of New York, recently a Populist in Minnesota, and John T. McGraw, boss of the West Virginia Democrats, excepting that large wing of the party that follows ex-Gov. MacCorkle and the Chilton boys. The rally is to be held in a wigwam erected on the site of the new postoffice building. West Virginia Republicans will watch the meeting with interest, as they are wondering what possible excuse the Democrats can give in attempting to win over Republicans to the Democratic ticket.

Republicans Force Fighting.

While the Democrats are trying to get their campaign under way, the Republicans will be forcing the fighting in every county. Col. Dawson, the nominee for governor, starts tomorrow on a tour of the state, and it is his intention to continue preaching Republican doctrines until election day. At the same time other spellbinders will be working in the five congressional districts of the state. Before the campaign is ended Senator Knox of Pittsburgh, Secretaries Moody, Taft and Wilson, Speaker Cannon, Congressman Bede of Minnesota, ex-Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska and other orators of national reputation will be heard in the state.

Congressman Dayton of the Second district is running the campaign in his district. He will start in tomorrow to make speeches, and twice each day will show his constituents why West Virginia cannot afford to make a change at the White House or in their representation in congress. Dayton is a good campaigner. He is an excellent talker, and he says things. His speeches are never dull.

A more tireless worker in a campaign cannot be found than Mr. Dayton. Several years ago when John McGraw was trying to defeat him, an appeal came from a logging camp in the wilds of Randolph county. One hundred and fifty men were employed in converting the forest into marketable lumber. They hungered for the doctrines of Republican protection, for they knew it brought them prosperity. To reach their settlement the congressman had to ride on a log train during a driving rainstorm. It was late in October and the day very cold. Dayton landed in the camp looking like a man who had been fished out of a river.

Clad in His Underwear.

The congressman was informed that the train would be held an hour for him. One of the lumbermen volunteered the information that there was not a woman within 40 miles of the camp and suggested that Dayton peel off his clothes and socks and allow them to dry before the fire while he preached McKinley and prosperity. The suggestion was acted upon, and clad in a suit of underwear, the barefoot statesman from Philippi discussed the issues of the campaign. Every vote in the camp went for the straight Republican ticket.

Joseph Cannon, speaker of the national house of representatives, and Congressman Bede of Minnesota will make three speeches in the Dayton district, one in Woodyard's, one in Hughes' and one in Dovener's. The big meeting in Dayton's district will be on the afternoon of October 18. It will be held in Morgantown and the Republicans of Monongalia county are making preparations to outdo all past attempts. A cavalry regiment of 1,000 men has been organized and is now being drilled by a former army officer. An infantry regiment of like size will also be in the parade. On the evening of October 18 Speaker Cannon and Congressman Bede will talk in Fairmont. The next afternoon they are in Kingwood and at night will address the voters at Grafton. October 15 a day meeting will be held in Huntington and on October 17 there will be a daylight rally at Parkersburg. This tour of Cannon and Bede will be one of the strongest features of the West Virginia campaign.

Will Settle Congressional Contest.

The national committee will this week dispose of the tangle in the Third congressional district, where Joseph H. Gaines, the present representative, and W. S. Edwards are claiming the congressional nomination. It is the opinion of the state leaders that a satisfactory adjustment can be made and that the district will give its old-time Republican majority.

The Democrats have been out of power in West Virginia for eight years and the party is without an organization in the state. John McGraw has been able to control the delegations to national conventions and succeeded in putting through his slate in the state convention this year, but when it comes down to getting a working force in each election district he is shy of laborers. The MacCorkle-

Chilton-Thompson crowd do not feel disposed to help put their enemy in power. McGraw is trying to run the campaign with his factional machine and there is a general lack of harmony. In the Republican camp there is a perfect organization and every cog is turning. State Chairman Elliott Northcott has about completed his preliminary poll of the state and knows just where the important work has been done.

One straw that shows the great interest in Republican success is the hearty manner in which the business people of Parkersburg entered into the plans for bringing out a crowd at the meeting of yesterday. In nearly every window of the business houses and banking institutions on the main street of the city large pictures of Roosevelt and Fairbanks were displayed. Judging from the number of these lithographs, the merchants of Parkersburg are evidently satisfied that Wood county's vote will be about unanimous.

HORRIBLY BURNED WITH BATH OF BURNING TAR

Terrible Death of Superintendent of Pintsch Gas Compressing Company by an Explosion.

A. W. Smith, superintendent of the Pintsch Gas Compressing Company, was so badly burned in an explosion at the company's plant in Laurel avenue, shortly before 5 o'clock last evening, that he died at the West Penn hospital a few hours later. Smith was engaged in lining a planket, which is an inlet to a large vessel through which a compound of gas and tar is poured, on top of the boiler house, when the gas ignited and caused the tar to explode. Smith was covered from head to foot with the hot mass and was terribly burned about the face, arms and body. He was removed to the West Penn hospital, but died about 9 o'clock. He was 25 years old, single and boarded at 3036 Penn avenue. A still alarm of fire was turned in to No. 25 Engine company, but the fire did no damage.

Because his wages for the month did not meet his expectations, John Paul, a laborer, employed at the Glenwood yards of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, shot himself at his home, No. 3 Rutherglen street, early yesterday morning and died at the Mercy hospital later from his wound. The bullet entered his left breast. Saturday when Paul drew his wages his envelope contained only $30.10. He had expected to receive $45, at the rate of $1.50 a day. He asked the paymaster about it and was informed that nothing more was due him. This made him morose. At midnight he went to bed and later his wife heard him get up and go to a bureau drawer. Before she could prevent him, he secured a small revolver and fired a shot into his left breast. He was 35 years old.

REFUSED TO PROSECUTE.

Victim of Robbers Would Not Push Case Against Suspects, Who Were His Friends.

H. C. Bryan of Wall, a switchman at the Pennsylvania transfer yards, who was robbed Saturday afternoon near Wilmerding, refused to make charges against J. A. Shelley and A. J. Kelly, who were arrested on suspicion of having robbed him.

Bryan was under the influence of liquor when he was attacked by two men at Spring Hill mine, near Wilmerding, in broad daylight. The holdup was witnessed by Mrs. James Barton and Miss Laura Laughner. They notified Chief of Police Harry Davenport of Wilmerding, who arrested the men on suspicion. Bryan had cashed a check for $65 Saturday. Shelley had $30 and Kelly $22 when arrested. Bryan was acquainted with them, and declared yesterday that he did not believe they would rob him. They were fined $5 as suspicious characters.

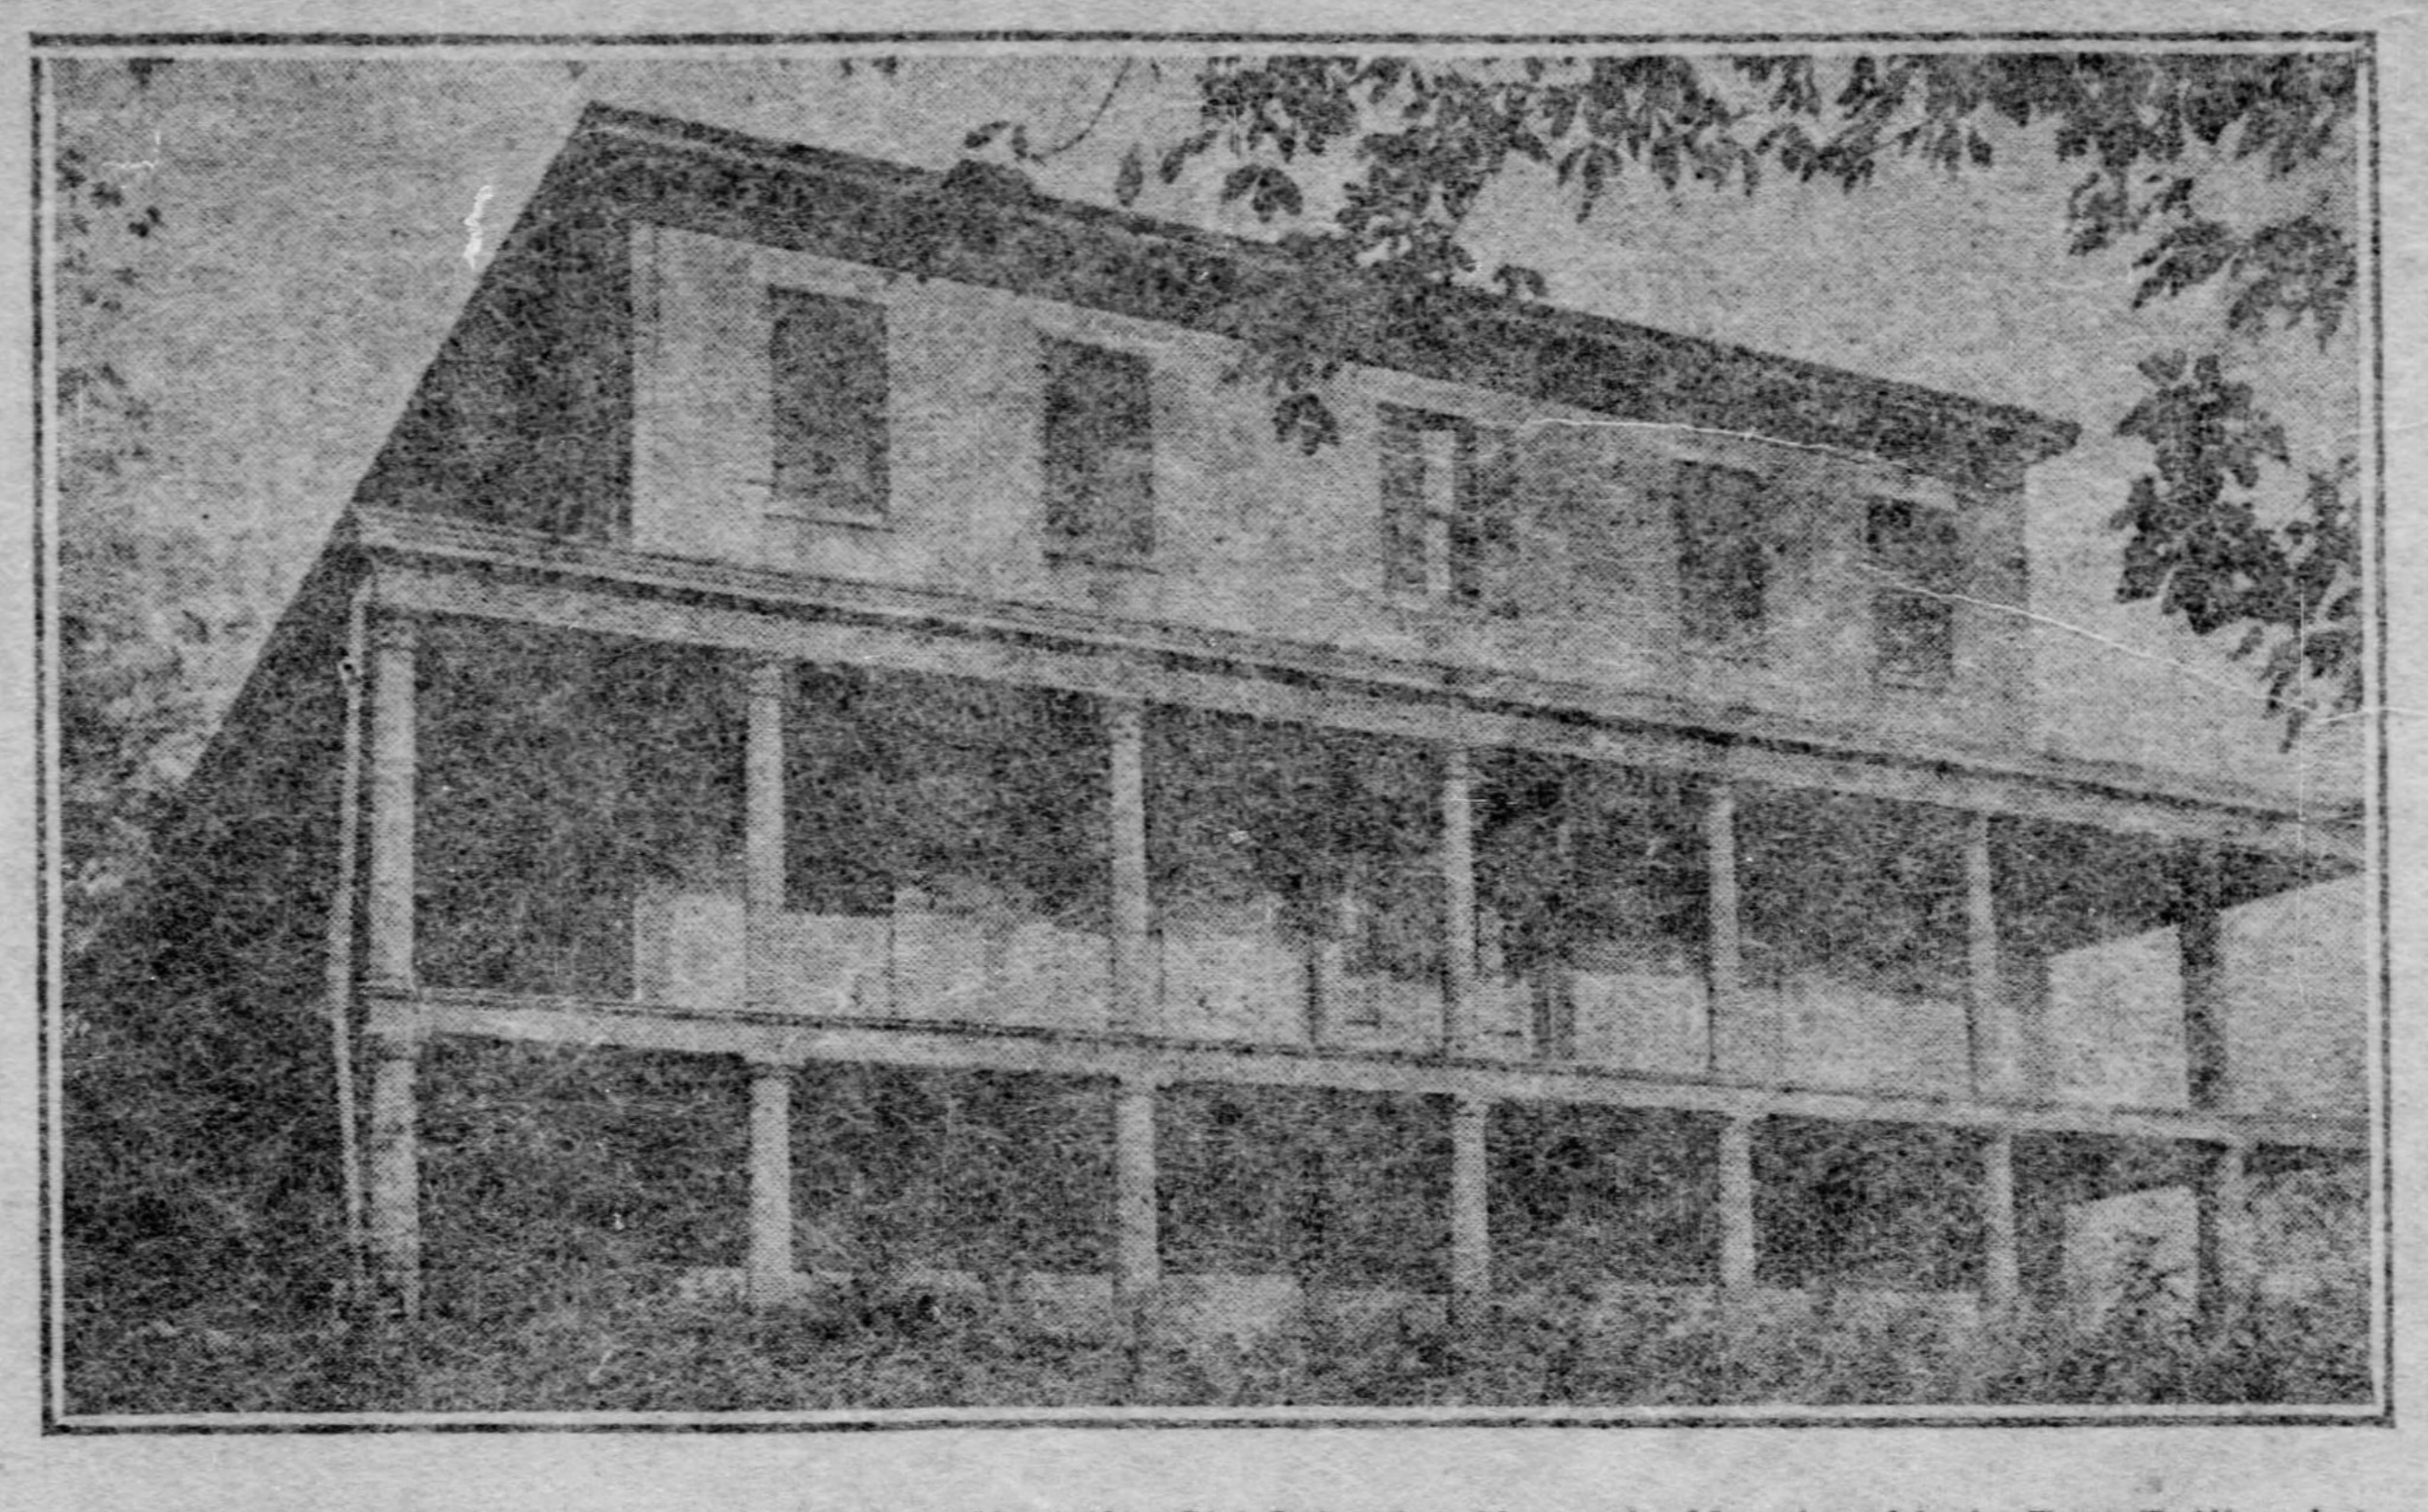
Relic Hunters at Work in Schenley Mansion



Once the Scene of Much Life and Gaiety. Now the Old Schenley House in Morningside Is Fast Falling Into Decay.

VANDALS VISIT SCHENLEY HOME

FAMOUS "STOVE PIPE" HAT

Reports of vandalism at the old Schenley manor in Morningside have done much toward advertising Pittsburgh's most interesting relic of pioneer society. The thieves got but little when they invaded the dark chambers of the neglected mansion, but the news of their depredations has traveled far and awakened new interest in the home where Capt. Schenley and his bride lived during their short sojourn in Pittsburgh, nearly half a century ago. Visitors are now to be seen every day at the old house. A year ago the place was rarely opened.

There is little in the house that would be of use to the professional housebreaker. Antique furniture is dangerous goods for a burglar to negotiate, and besides this there is nothing to attract attention. While immunity is secured from the thief who works with a dark lantern and a jimmy, the most dangerous invader of the historic premises is the relic hunter, and the increase in the number of visitors has proportionately increased those who have no scruples against carrying away mementoes.

One night, several months ago, robbers entered the house and with a diamond cut out a section of glass in a china cabinet in the dining room and took a few pieces of tableware. The stolen goods were of rare design, however, and any exhibition of them would at once lead to the identity of the thieves, and few articles of value were taken. This robbery was followed not long afterward by an incursion of relic hunters and vandals, who took porcelain ornaments from the keyholes and the panels of the doors. Other odds and ends were also missed, but no articles of much value were taken, and since that time the visitor who is granted permission to examine the interior of the house is closely watched.

Thousands of people have made pilgrimages to the old house since the death of Mrs. Schenley last fall. The somber mansion is Pittsburgh's Mt. Vernon, and like the sacred estate on the Potomac, the great majority of the visitors come from great distances. Tourists from England and the southern states seemingly take the greatest interest in the manor, and among them it is considered one of the best types of the old-time country seat.

The house stands on the top of the hill overlooking the Allegheny cemetery on the northeast. Surrounded by a grove of dense trees, briars and weeds, it is obscured through the summer months from all the city thoroughfares. A dairy farm of 150 acres adjoins the house and it is not surprising that it is neglected and forgotten in such complete isolation. The driveway, which was used in the old days for dashing equipages of state, is now traced through the growth of grass and the remnant of rose hedges and shade trees. The home stands on a little knoll, which rises on the summit of the hill like a tiny parasol raised over a gigantic umbrella, and with its two high-columned balconies, the mansion has a majestic appearance, notwithstanding its need of paint and repairs.

Of all the curious things which the old house contains, but two relics are sacredly guarded against vandals. There are candle sconces, mirrors, clocks and splendid old paintings and portraits, but it is two antiquated pieces of headgear that are most jealously watched. One is a glossy beaver hat that was worn by Capt. Schenley, and a plumed straw which belonged to the millinery wardrobe of Mrs. Schenley in her younger days. The silk hat is of the unmitigated "stovepipe" variety, with a crown 15 inches high and a slightly turned rim. The tile was made by McCord, in Pittsburgh, and its size is 7¾. It would make a peck measure that would pass for a generous standard.

Mrs. Schenley's hat also is of immense proportions, even in these days of big hats, and is trimmed with a beautiful graceful brown plume. The hat belonged to the styles of the late 50s and is familiar through having been, apparently, a copy of the hat worn by Queen Victoria in the days of the Crimean war.

FIGHT GETTING WARM.

Washington County Republicans Are Fighting to Secure a Record-Breaking Majority.

WASHINGTON, PA., Sept. 18.—(Special.)—The political situation in Washington county is warming up, and the Republicans are making a fight to secure the largest majority of a presidential year in the history of the party. Headquarters have been opened and County Chairman J. V. Clark and Secretary John L. Stewart, with assistant secretaries, are sounding each voting precinct in the county.

With the nomination of Dr. Montgomery Linnville of New Castle, a native of Washington county, the Democrats have taken new hope and will make an aggressive campaign. A fight will be made for the entire ticket. The registry of votes in the county, just completed, shows 27,814 voters, an increase of 3,566 since 1900. It is estimated that the Republicans will poll about 40 per cent, the Democrats 25 per cent, and the rest scattering.

TRAINMEN WILL HAVE WORD TODAY

No Mention of Grievance Made at Meeting Held in Allegheny Last Night.

AWAIT REPORT ON VOTE TAKEN

It is said that no mention of the possibility of a strike among the trainmen of the northwestern division of the Pennsylvania lines was made last night at the meeting of Good Will lodge No. 106, but because of the intense interest in the situation the headquarters in Beaver avenue, Allegheny, was crowded. Vice Master Harry Dalbey presided.

Many attended the meeting, expecting to meet Grand Master P. H. Morrissey and Third Vice Val Fitzpatrick, who were reported as being in the city. But they are still keeping their whereabouts secret.

There was some disappointment expressed that the grievances of the men against the Pennsylvania Company were not discussed. The interest the men are taking in the dispute was manifested by their conversation prior to the opening of the meeting. Nothing of a radical character was expressed. An effort made to bring the subject up in the meeting for discussion was promptly cried down and the proceedings then became routine. Several new members were initiated and the applications of 14 others were received and filed.

There will likely be some definite information received today from the national headquarters at Cleveland. W. H. Hamilton, one of the legislative committee of the Allegheny lodge, said last night that a referendum vote had been taken. The communications from the various lodges affected were placed in the hands of the general grievance committee and until that body is heard from the men will know nothing of their possible future actions.

"I would not care to forecast the report of the grand lodge officers," said Mr. Hamilton. "There has been a spirit of conservatism displayed by the men since this subject was first talked of. The men have made known their convictions to the general grievance committee and are awaiting the decision of that body. It is the hope of all the men that there will be no strike."

It is expected that the count of votes will be finished today and that something positive will soon be known. The position of the railway officials, it is said, will be governed largely by the result of the vote and the report of the general grievance committee. If there is shown to be a decided disposition on the part of the men to strike, the officials may consent to deal with those to whom they have denied conferences during the past two weeks.

A MASSACRE IS FEARED

they found their position to be untenable they sent the following message to Gen. Stoessel: 'We are unable to hold this position.'

"'But you can die,' he said in reply, and so they did.

"The fact that the Japanese have on several occasions used explosive bullets has been verified by Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel. He gives an instance which occurred at Takushan when two men of the Sixteenth regiment were killed by such bullets, their bodies being blown to pieces.

"On September 14 the bodies of 2,600 Japanese soldiers were discovered between fort No. 2 and fort No. 3. The Russian authorities admit that they are not able to explain what engagement resulted in this slaughter."

Prince Radzivil gives another version, from hearsay, concerning the two companies of Japanese troops that surrendered. According to this version a Japanese battery fired on the two companies when the white flag was raised, whereupon the two companies turned and charged the battery. According to this same version Gen. Nogi was killed in this charge of his own men, as were several of the Japanese gunners. Persistent Chinese rumors have been received here lately to the effect that a successor to Gen. Nogi has arrived at Port Dalny, but this is denied by local Japanese.

The prince leaves tomorrow to join Kuropatkin.

The Japanese vessels blockading Port Arthur are paying particular attention to junks, which for a month past have been trying to smuggle supplies into the fortress. The junks generally are sunk and the men on board taken into Port Dalny.

After the Ex-Colored Cop's Diamond.

Mabel Baxter, a young colored woman, was locked in Central station last night, charged with stealing a $100 diamond pin from William Reynolds, colored, an ex-policeman. The arrest was made on a warrant charging larceny from the person. The girl says she did not steal the pin. She claims that while scuffling with Reynolds the pin was broken off and lost. Later she found the stone.

DOWIE SANCTIFIED BY HIS CHURCH

THOUSANDS HEARD CEREMONY

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—"I stand here today as the high priest on earth and the first apostle of the Christian Catholic and apostolic church of Zion of that higher Priest in heaven."

Clad in costly "robes of glory," his hands uplifted above a brass pedestal, surmounted by an eagle with wings outspread, with a background of 800 robed choristers and facing 3,000 members of his host and 5,000 other members of his church and visitors, John Alexander Dowie formally sanctified himself this afternoon in Shiloh tabernacle, as more than prophet and less than divine.

"I greet you today, I thank God you are here in thousands, that there are thousands of others with us on this great occasion. Zion, restoration host, do you accept John Alexander as the first apostle and high priest of the church on earth?"

"Yes," shouted back the members of the host.

"Officers of the church, do you accept John Alexander as the first apostle of the Lord Jesus Christ to the church?"

"Yes," shouted back his leaders and advisers and the choir broke forth in an anthem of rejoicing.

In an impressive demonstration lasting through nearly the whole day the greatest and most elaborate ceremony of the Zion church was celebrated. To an outpouring of his followers, and to thousands of others, with the lame and sick and blind before his chancel, Mr. Dowie stepped into the semi-dusk of the large tabernacle just as a flood of light burst from the hundreds of incandescent lights as if in greeting to the gorgeous raiment he has adopted as his badge of honor.

Zion City was the mecca of the Dowie faithful all through the morning. Special trains carried them in thousands to the home of their leader and brought others to witness the ceremonies attending the "prophet's" elevation to higher powers of leadership.

GREEK MERCHANT'S REVENGE.

Has Livery Firm Fined Because He Had to Pay for Selling on Sunday.

IRWIN, PA., Sept. 18.—(Special.)—As far as known the first livery firm in this part of the state to be fined for furnishing rigs on Sunday, is Smith Bros. of this town. The case was ended in Justice of the Peace Howell's court last night. The prosecutor was James Palvis, a Greek, who conducts a fruit stand.

Palvis was arrested three times for violating the blue laws, and was twice fined. The last time he declared he would obey the law and see others would do the same. He played detective last Sunday and made purchases at the Union news stand and hired a rig at the livery stable. He then swore out warrants for each and at the hearing of Smith Bros. they were fined $4 and costs.

ENGINEERS TO VIEW BIG SHOPS

WESTINGHOUSE THEIR HOST

Delegates from all parts of the world who attended the fifth international electrical congress held at St. Louis last week arrived in Pittsburgh last night and today will visit notable industrial plants of Greater Pittsburgh. There are 138 men and 18 women in the party, and today they will divide into eight groups and enjoy personally conducted tours around the city. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon they will assemble at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and at 6 o'clock will enjoy an informal dinner as the guests of George Westinghouse, who will arrive in Pittsburgh this morning to direct their entertainment.

It was a weary party of tourists that arrived at the Hotel Schenley last night. The railroads were congested with special trains bringing Knights Templars back from San Francisco and the electricians were three hours late. The dining car on their train was closed and when they stepped out of their carriages at the hotel their first question was for the direction of the dining room. The assignment of rooms seemed to require endless work of the hotel clerks and it was after 11 o'clock before the travelers could find a place to rest.

It is an unique party. Seventy-five per cent carry cameras and they looked like a convention of amateur photographers as they lugged their kodaks with their hand baggage. An exchange system has been formed among a number of the photographers by which they will get all the pictures of interest without the expense of duplication.

The visitors are enthusiastic in their praise of the progress that has been made in electrical science in the United States. They said that the world's fair had offered splendid triumphs in the art of illumination, but that they would be greatly disappointed if Pittsburgh would not unfold views of the greatest electrical manufacturing industries in the world.

"Pittsburgh is a very modest city," said Prof. Moise Ascoli, president of the Italian Electro-Technical society. "When we see steel rails in Europe we instantly think of Pittsburgh; when we see plate glass we think of Pittsburgh; when a fine man-of-war sails up the Adriatic and displays her armored turrets grimly above the emerald sea we always think of Pittsburgh. Electricians, of course, always have this great city in mind. Since our arrival in this country every technical man whom we have met has told us of the great things we shall see, but when we arrive here we find its people apparently oblivious to the important part Pittsburgh is playing in the world today. Modesty is true of a great city just as it characterizes a great man."

The number of visitors in the tours through the city today will be limited and each delegate has been given his choice of a tour. All will meet at the Westinghouse plant, where an inspection of the shops will be made prior to the dinner. The itinerary for each trip follows:

No. 1, Union Switch and Signal Company and Westinghouse Machine Company; No. 2, Nernst Lamp Company, R. D. Nuttall Company and Westinghouse Machine Company; No. 3, Carnegie steel works, Bessemer and Westinghouse Machine Company; No. 4, Westinghouse Machine Company and Westinghouse Air Brake Company; No. 5, Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Union Switch and Signal Company and Westinghouse Machine Company; No. 6, Carnegie steel works, Homestead, and Westinghouse Machine Company.

At the East Pittsburgh plant a big machine shop has been transformed into a magnificent banquet hall, and there will be no suggestion of the busy scenes that ordinarily are witnessed in the big building. Thousands of yards of bunting, the flags of all nations and spotless linen and dazzling plate and crystal will make it most inviting. Covers will be laid for 400 guests.

A special program has been arranged for the entertainment of the women of the party. The local ladies' reception committee will meet their guests at the Schenley at 10:45 o'clock tomorrow morning and will drive in carriages through the boulevards and parks. Luncheon will be served at the hotel at noon. They will leave in a special trolley car at 3:30 o'clock and go to East Pittsburgh to attend the dinner. At 9:20 o'clock the travelers will board their special train at East Pittsburgh and go to Washington. The members of the ladies' reception committee are Mrs. F. H. Taylor, chairman; Mrs. E. M. Herr, Mrs. E. E. Keller, Mrs. C. F. Scott, Mrs. J. A. Dunn, Mrs. J. G. Schreuder, Mrs. L. A. Osborne, Mrs. James Todd and Mrs. J. H. Reed.

Labor Conditions Improved, Union Men Have Lost Most of the Strikes.

NEW YORK STATE BULLETIN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 18.—The quarterly bulletin of the state department of labor, issued today, has this to say as to the situation in the nation:

"Conditions of employment in the entire country manifest improvement according to the latest statistics collected by the American Federation of Labor. In the September issue of the American Federationist, the official magazine of the federation, it is stated that among 85,450 members of 1,032 unions making returns for July 1, 6 per cent were without employment at the close of the month, while a month earlier the 1,891 unions making returns reported 5.1 per cent of the membership as unemployed and in July, 1903, the percentage of unemployed was 3.3."

Referring to strikes, the bulletin says that the two overshadowing disputes for the second quarter of this year were the masters and pilots on strike on the great lakes, and the New York clothing trades strike against the "open shop." It adds: "In the latter dispute about 25,000 employes were directly concerned and probably as many more thrown out of employment for some part of the period of the dispute, the total number of working days lost being estimated at more than 1,000,000. Twenty of 43 disputes resulted in favor of the employers and only five in favor of the employes, while nine were compromised. The compromises were nearly all made upon demands for increased wages, which was still the leading cause of disputes. The employers were almost uniformly successful in the disputes involving trade unionism."

PRISONERS AND SPOILS SECURED BY JAPANESE

Marquis Oyama Gives a List of Number of Russians and Stores Captured.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

TOKYO, Sept. 18.—Noon.—Marquis Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in the field, telegraphed this morning that Gen. Oku had reported having captured 13 prisoners at the battle of Liao-Yang. He also telegraphed a detailed list of the Russian stores which Gen. Oku captured, as follows: Thirty horses, 2,288 rifles, 127 ammunition wagons, 5,892 rounds of artillery, 659,930 small arm cartridges, great quantities of timber, flour, rice, forage, engineering implements, clothing and accoutrements.

Marquis Oyama reports that the armies under Gens. Kuroki and Nodzu made no prisoners in the fighting before Liao-Yang. Gen. Kuroki captured 40 horses, 800 rifles, 300 rounds of artillery and 600,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, telegraph apparatus and various miscellaneous implements.

Gen. Nodzu captured 490 rifles, 1,164 rounds of artillery and 37,880 rounds of rifle ammunition, three heliographs, telephones, tools and large quantities of foodstuffs and timber. Gen. Oku captured sufficient timber to construct railroad depots.

EXPLOSION DUE TO RIVALRY.

Two Persons Are Probably Fatally Injured During a Band Concert.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—During a band concert at Fairmount and Frank streets, this evening, a lead pipe loaded with powder or dynamite, was exploded with malicious intent, the police believe, and Pasquale Ferrito and Walter Cox, 15 years old, were probably fatally injured. Pasquale's back was torn away and Cox had a leg blown off.

Rivalry between two bands of the district is said to be the cause for much ill feeling of the bandsmen toward each other.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Lena Mason, colored lecturer and evangelist, has been assigned to make speeches in the present campaign by the Republican national committee. Mrs. Mason has been in this city holding religious meetings for several weeks. Her home was originally in Denver, Col.

Piano Buying

is "agreeing" with the Dealer in Price. Just fancy the strange, unbusinesslike things you have to do if you want to buy a piano—in some stores.

For instance, you are asked $450.00 for a piano; you don't want to pay that much, and the funniest thing about it is the salesman doesn't expect you to

He merely "asks" this much in order to have a chance to make big reductions. That's the bait so many bite on.

As we have a strictly ONE-PRICE SYSTEM, we mark the LOWEST Price on every Piano. You can't waste five minutes with us on Price. Assuredly, that is the honest, businesslike way, and that's why piano-shopping is pleasant at our store.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Allegheny Preparatory school reopens September 21, 1904. The Headmaster will be at the school office after September 8, between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m., to meet and classify pupils, to talk with intending patrons and to show those who may wish to see them the building and equipment. The school provides instruction for boys and girls from the first year of school life till they are ready for any American college or university. The work is done by 15 expert teachers.

A well equipped gymnasium and a large playground, under the exclusive control of the school, offer ample opportunity for sports and games. These are individual "corrective work," under trained directors, give the physical development of both boys and girls its due emphasis. Oral expression, singing, reading aloud, public speaking and debates have their proper place in the curriculum.

Owing to its non-commercial character, the entire income of the school can be applied in making the school better. The building has just been redecorated throughout.

BOASTS HE WILL SUCCEED MOORE

Wallace Tells His Police Associates That He Will Soon Be Director.

CONFIRMATION TO BE AVOIDED

Acting Superintendent of Police "Buck" Wallace is openly boasting he will soon be director of the department of public safety. Wallace is away on his vacation, but before leaving he declared to some of his police associates, offering to sustain his prediction with a wager, he would succeed Director Moore, and gave the impression this would take place before he returns from his vacation. He is expected to return about October 6. Wallace is keeping his whereabouts a secret.

It has been known among administration officials for several weeks that Wallace had been promised the directorship during the last year of Mayor Hays' term, beginning April 1 next, but from the flat declaration made a few days ago by the mayor to a councilman it is believed that Hays has determined to make the change about six months sooner than he first intended. It would not surprise many persons in close touch with municipal affairs if the change took place the first of next month. A singular fact is that despite these statements by the mayor and Wallace, the present director, Harry Moore, declares he knows nothing of an intended change.

The attitude of Louis H. Frederick, select councilman from Moore's ward, the Twenty-seventh, is not helping Moore with the administration. Frederick's nomination and election were largely due to Director's Moore's efforts, but he has become one of the leaders of the new organization in select council which is fighting the administration. After the last meeting of select council, Frederick was called by Director Moore into a conference in the mayor's private office with the mayor, Moore and Director Bigelow. For over half an hour Frederick was talked to, but he came out and told his fellow members of select council that he was still with them.

It is believed that the mayor has determined to make Wallace acting director, and thus avoid a fight in select council over his confirmation. The new charter act requires that the appointment of department heads must all be confirmed by select council, but if Wallace is made an acting director it is held that a confirmation would not be necessary, although he could exercise all the duties of a director. Controller Larkin might have something to say about this, as he is liable to object to paying permanently an appointee who is placed on the payroll as a temporary officer. The controller once held up Wallace's pay as a detective because Wallace had not been a resident of the city for six months prior to his appointment. Wallace, at the advice of Mayor Hays, continued to act as detective for several months without pay.

Director Bigelow returned to the city yesterday to look after the bond fight and also to handle the common council meeting tonight. Murry A. Verner was another arrival from his summer residence at Lakewood.

SUNDAY WAS WIDE-OPEN FROM BLUE LAW VIEWPOINT

At Same Time Day Was Very Quiet—Crusaders Have Difficulty Gathering Evidence.

Yesterday was a quiet, wide-open sort of a Sunday in Pittsburgh. While the blue laws were violated on every hand by the operating of soda fountains, the selling of cigars and tobacco, ice cream and all sorts of harmless refreshments, the Allegheny County Sabbath Observance society had several detectives at work gathering evidence of the alleged desecration of the Lord's day. There were comparatively few people on the streets downtown and there was no semblance of disorder anywhere.

The crusaders declared that they expected to have some difficulty in getting much evidence of open violation of the law except among druggists and cigar dealers. They will not interfere with the corporations and admitted that if they should continue making informations they would have to confine themselves to the same class of dealers whom they have been proceeding against all through the last summer. Persons connected with the association pleaded ignorant of plans for yesterday's crusade, saying the active part of the campaign was entirely in the hands of the detectives whom they employed. Conditions, it was said, would largely be instrumental in shaping the future policy. The Rev. Dr. J. T. McCrory said that the crusade had reached a quiescent stage pending the campaign of education which will be begun in many of the churches.

"There are no blue laws so far as the druggists are concerned," said a Smithfield street pharmacist. "We are now going along just as we have been doing for 20 years. In that time we have encountered several waves of mock reform, but they did not last. Drug stores and refreshment stands are a necessity in a large city on Sunday and the people have found it out. We have ceased to bother ourselves about the few trouble makers who are jeopardizing the standing of all churches by antagonizing the religious liberty of all their neighbors."

Collections were taken in a few churches toward raising the fund of $2,000 needed for the expenses of the crusade. Much of the money will go toward paying the attorneys who have been retained for Nelson C. Starkey, the blue law detective who killed Harry D. Knox.

Thirty-six ministers in Braddock yesterday appealed to their congregations for funds for the defense of Detective Starkey. With the same request they asked for funds to assist the Sabbath Observance association to carry on its crusade. Subscriptions were taken, but the amount raised could not be estimated before today. Last night the Rev. Dr. George E. Hawes, pastor of the Parker Avenue United Presbyterian church, Braddock, preached a sermon on "The Christian and the Sabbath," in which he said that the Christian people of Allegheny county had yet to be heard. He said that a prejudiced view against the crusade had been given by certain Pittsburgh newspapers.

GREAT CROWDS TO HEAR HUGH BLACK

Famous Scotch Minister Has Two Immense Audiences at Third Presbyterian Church.

TO DELIVER LECTURES HERE

Two immense audiences crowded the Third Presbyterian church, Fifth and South Negley avenues, yesterday, to hear the Rev. Hugh Black of the United Free St. George's church of Edinburgh, Scotland. Every seat was taken at both the morning and evening services and the visitor certainly had reason to be proud of the compliment shown him by his Pittsburgh audience.

In appearance Mr. Black is a pleasant featured, intellectual looking man, who seems to be on the sunny side of 40. A wealth of curly black hair crowns a well-formed head and a pair of bright eyes light an exceedingly earnest but kindly looking face. The firm mouth gives an air of force to his features and the chin shows all of the Scotch determination told of in song and story. His voice is as soft as a woman's and yet when raised in the intensity of emotion, it has a roll like thunder. He is an ideal pulpit orator and the Scotch burr to his tongue only adds to the pleasure of his American audiences. It is a treat to hear him.

The Rev. Hugh Black.

Mr. Black goes from this city to the congress of arts and sciences at the St. Louis world's fair, and will return to Pittsburgh to preach in the Sixth Presbyterian church on October 2. During his stay in this city he will deliver a series of lectures at the Western Theological seminary, beginning September 27, on the general subject, "Christian Culture."

Mr. Black's sermon last night was a powerful production upon "The Deceitfulness of Sin." His text, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked," was handled in a most admirable manner. He said in part:

> There is no sin which does not preface the act with the belief that there will be no evil consequences. Few, if any, deliberately commit sin, careless of what the results may be. Conscience and all the better nature is usually lulled to sleep by the belief that, by some means, by some plan yet to be worked out the consequences of the act may be avoided and the evil which may fall, as a result of it, may be overcome.
>
> The priests of the Jews, when they sought the condemnation of Christ before Pilate, cried out, "His blood be upon us and upon our children." But after that innocent blood had been shed, when the storm clouds of retribution began to gather about them, they sought to avoid the consequences of their act. They had the courage of sin that enabled them to cry, "His blood be upon us and upon our children," but when that blood visited upon them condemnation for their act, their courage turned to cowardice, their strength to weakness, their loud cry to a miserable whine, and they said to Simon Peter: "Why seekest thou to fasten this man's blood upon us." They had sown the wind. They wished to avoid the reaping of the whirlwind. But there can be no escape from the consequences of sin. When malice caused the shedding of Abel's blood by Cain, when the lust burned in David's eye, when the silver tinkled in Judas' ear, the forces of punishment were already at work. The universe is guided by physical laws, but there is a moral law which is just as unchangeable, just as sure, just as never-failing as are the laws which guide the stars in their courses and which bring about the day and the night and the seasons of the year.

REAL ESTATE MAN IN JAIL.

L. W. Wilson Held on Charge of False Pretense After Bondsman Gave Him Up.

L. W. Wilson, real estate agent, with offices in the Farmers bank building, was committed to jail yesterday on a bail piece of $1,000 on a charge of false pretense, a Greek alleging Wilson collected $200 from him fraudulently. George Flaccus was Wilson's bondsman, but he withdrew from the bond on Satday and Wilson was arrested by order of the court.

The first information against Wilson was made by a Greek in Diamond street, last spring, before Alderman S. J. Toole. Wilson was held for court and the case was never called. Flaccus said he did not care to remain on the bond longer.

Mrs. George Tann of East Pittsburgh has now made an information against Wilson, before Alderman Toole, charging him with embezzlement. It is alleged he collected a fire insurance premium of $150 which he never turned into the insurance company, she learning this a short time ago when, after a fire in her house, she was informed that her policy had lapsed because of non-payment of premium. Then she started an investigation.

DISCHARGED PASTOR IS TO GET REHEARING

Charges against the Rev. C. E. McFall, which led to his dismissal from the pastorate of the Sewickley Baptist church several months ago, will be investigated at a congregational meeting tomorrow evening, which has been called to give the former pastor a rehearing. He has returned from the west, where he went immediately after his dismissal, and it is said that he proposes to meet his accusers and clear himself. Mrs. McFall, who, it is said, made charges against her husband, has changed her attitude and will not appear against him.

PARK VISITORS VIEWED START OF NEW BRIDGE

Contractors Have Begun Work on Wilmot Street Structure—Another Birth at Highland Zoo.

Several hundred persons yesterday viewed the beginning of the much talked-of Wilmot street bridge which is to furnish an entrance into Schenley park for a large district that at present has access to the pleasure ground only by a roundabout way. There is nothing to see just now but the beginning of an excavation and a lot of machinery behind the music stand.

F. Felkel, Sons & Co. have the contract for the stone work of the proposed bridge, and two days ago they started work on the abutment at the park end. That abutment and pier will be completed first, and then work on the one on the other side of the Junction railroad will be started. Residents of the district hope that the piers will be finished before winter is over and that the entire structure will be completed before July 4, 1905. It has taken 10 years, since the project was started, for the work to get thus far along.

For this time of year the grass in Schenley and Highland parks is remarkably green, the usual bare or brown appearance in the early fall having been headed off by unusual rains and cool weather. While the weather generally has not been of the kind to coax people to the parks, the indian summer is expected to be an exceptionally fine season this year, because the grass will be more presentable than it ordinarily is at that period.

An East Indian antelope was born at the Highland park zoo on Friday, and Ernest Tretow, the head keeper, has strong hopes that the kid will thrive during the winter, as its native habitat is in the highlands of India, where the climate is almost that of the temperate zone. Two red foxes have been presented to the zoo. The state of health of all the animals is unusually good and they will enter upon the winter in the best condition.

An unusually fine display of chrysanthemums will be exhibited at the Schenley park conservatories, beginning on the first Sunday in November. The plants are now being forced, so as to be in full bloom at the time set.

Buyers of iron and steel who have been kept busy by mail and wire keeping in touch with the Pittsburgh market during the past few weeks are now on the ground in person to keep themselves informed. This is one of the indications that the metal market has lost the listless character it presented earlier in the year. There is now an actual demand and this may soon broaden into lively movement. The era of stagnation has passed.

A remarkable incident of yesterday was the imposition of a fine of fifty dollars upon a recently appointed inspector of police, on the charge of conducting a gambling house. Now the average citizen out in the rural districts will wonder how this can be. It will seem strange to him that a man should be appointed to so responsible a position without full knowledge of his character, and still more strange that he could have been appointed if he was known to be the keeper of a gaming house. The ways of a great city under a reform administration are mysterious.

After much travail the new municipal hospital has been completed and is a credit to the city. It presents a strong contrast to the shacks in the same vicinity, that have borne the title of city hospitals for contagious diseases, the new building being erected on modern sanitary principles and containing proper conveniences. The smallpox epidemic has passed before the new hospital has become available, and was probably more extended than it would have been had the city had a good hospital in the beginning. The fact of importance, however, is that the city now has a hospital and that it should so maintain it as to be prepared for future emergencies.

Last week the industrial chemists were here, today we have the electricians. They are quite as welcome, and Pittsburgh has probably even more to show to them in the line of their own business. At least they will have the opportunity to visit one of the foremost plants in the world for the manufacture of electrical machinery and supplies and an auxiliary plant where the finest driving machinery is turned out in units of any size. Among the visitors are many men who have achieved success and whose efforts have given to humanity improved appliances for economy and comfort. Their names are well known on both sides of the Atlantic ocean, and Pittsburgh is glad to have them here.

Senator Fairbanks' tour through West Virginia was a continuous ovation. He preached to the people of the war-born state the doctrine of protection to home industries and the wisdom of clinging to the good things they have—and for that they applauded him. West Virginia has been won from Democracy during the past two decades by the practical lessons it has had as to the advantage of Republican policies. The material development of the state has been marvelous. It has been more rapid during Republican than during Democratic times, and, while the people respect their aged fellow citizen who was nominated for vice president by the St. Louis convention, they recognize Senator Fairbanks as the representative of the party that has done them the most good. West Virginia will go Republican, all right.

The letter from the Associated Press correspondent with Gen. Kuroki gives a vivid picture of the great difference between scientific warfare as the Japanese carry it on and the old style of dashing leadership which figures in war romance. The reason why there has been such heavy mortality among Russian commanders is that they take personal lead of their troops, while the Japanese generals act as directors, managing the battle from the rear by telegraph and telephone. So carefully are Gen. Kuroki's plans worked out, Moltke fashion, that while the battle is on he has nothing to do, and that is his time for rest and recreation. The Japanese troops, too, are unlike any other troops in the world. There is not a bottle of liquor within fifty miles of the battle line, but the things upon which the Japanese soldiers insist on having handy are fans for their comfort, fishing rods so that they can have some quiet sport during a halt near a stream, and also big iron kettles to enable them to take the daily bath in the honorable hot water which to Japanese notions is among the necessaries of life. A nation which makes war in this business-like way is certain to command respect.

It is said Russia is organizing an army of 400,000 men to put in the field next year, and that there is no thought of giving in to Japan. There can be no question about Russia's ability to raise an army of 400,000 men in addition to the troops in the field, but there is room for reasonable doubt as to her ability to get those men to the front and to maintain them there. The Siberian railroad is taxed to sustain the 250,000 now in the field at maximum strength. During the winter months the task will be more severe. In the spring conditions will be little if any better than at present and they may be worse. Japan, on the other hand, should soon have 500,000 men in Manchuria, with three lines of communication to Mukden—one by the Liao river, one by rail from Kin-Chau and one by rail and highway from the Korean base. Russia's communications are her weak spot.

The British expedition to Lassa having at last accomplished its object, is now returning to India. An arduous march lies before the troops, as winter has already set in at those high altitudes, but it is easier going than coming, and the consciousness of having succeeded under peculiar difficulties will make them light-hearted. It took severe measures to impress the Tibetan authorities with the necessity of recognizing British authority, and even then it is probable that news of the reverses which Russia is experiencing may have turned the scale by showing that no help was to be expected from that quarter. The representatives of the Chinese government, which sustains an advisory relation toward the Tibetan authorities, hardly failed to enlighten them as to the great change that had taken place in the posture of eastern affairs. At present Russian influence in the east is eclipsed, and it is likely to stay so until a settlement is reached with Japan.

A New Departure.

We have been favored by the Democratic national committee with advance proofs of a portion of the Democratic campaign text book soon to be issued. It is reasonable to assume that the portion to which special notice is thus invited relates to some issue which the Democratic party means to make the feature of the campaign, so that we have examined it with particular interest. If that was the idea which prompted the selection, then the intention is to bring reciprocity to the front. There is not a word about the woes of the Filipinos, the imminent danger of the conversion of the republic into an empire, the continual robbery of the people by the protective policy, the urgent necessity of reducing the army and navy, and other thrilling themes of the St. Louis platform. The selected portion relates wholly to reciprocity.

We congratulate the Democratic national committee in dismissing the campaign humbugs with which the St. Louis platform is stuffed to take up a really practical issue. It is one that really deserves discussion, and we must admit that the Republican party record is open to criticism. The platform pledges of 1896 as regards reciprocity have never been redeemed, and the defeat of President McKinley's policy by the senate is not a creditable feature of the party record. If the Democratic party will take up that subject and thoroughly ventilate it a genuine service will be rendered to the people.

The advance proofs score decidedly upon the compilers of the Republican campaign text book, in which the Republican platform is quoted as saying: "We favor liberal trade arrangements with Canada and with peoples of other countries where they can be entered into with benefit to American agriculture, manufactures, mining and commerce." It is pointed out that that is not in the Republican platform, but is in the Democratic platform, and such indeed is the case. The Republican plank says: "We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor or any American industry." As abstract utterances in favor of reciprocity the two planks do not differ materially, but the Democratic platform expresses special favor toward reciprocity arrangements with Canada, and the advance extract of the campaign text book deals principally with the subject of our commercial relations with Canada.

We do not dispute the importance of the subject, and think that the Democratic party does well in taking it up, but it must be noted that that is an entirely new departure. Under the McKinley tariff law reciprocity treaties were made by President Harrison with Brazil, British Guiana, Salvador, Nicaragua, Honduras, Guatemala, Santo Domingo, the British West Indies, Porto Rico and Cuba. In 1894 all those treaties were repealed by a Democratic congress and opposition to reciprocity was made a Democratic principle. The Democratic hand book issued for the congressional election of 1902 laid down the party doctrine on this subject as follows: "Reciprocity is based upon the same false theories as is protection, and, like protection, is a sham and a humbug, and to most people has been and will ever continue to be a delusion and a snare." In thus coupling protection and reciprocity, the Democratic party at least perceives their real logical connection. As President Roosevelt pointed out in his letter of acceptance, "there can be no reciprocity unless there is a substantial tariff; free trade and reciprocity are not compatible." How, then, will the Democratic party reconcile their new found interest in reciprocity with their platform plank denouncing "protectionism as a robbery of the many to enrich the few?"

In order to find a record of Democratic action in favor of reciprocity the advance extract goes back to the Elgin reciprocity treaty of 1855 and gives figures showing that under the operations of that treaty our total trade with Canada increased from $18,960,156 to $73,357,508 in eleven years. Mention of the fact is, however, omitted that what Canada sold us rather than what we sold her entered most largely into that trade total. In 1903 our exports to Canada amounted to $215,482,769 and our imports amounted to $189,736,475. It is hard to see where we have suffered from the abrogation of the old reciprocity treaty. Meanwhile Canada, too, is getting along splendidly, and one of the great difficulties which now stands in the way of reciprocity arrangements is that Canada is no longer inclined that way. If the Democratic party now intends to make reciprocity the leading issue of the campaign it will have considerable difficulty in reconciling its position with its record and in adjusting its contention to the facts, but it will at least have a subject of real merit.

Must End the War.

A great deal of attention has been attracted by an interview with a Russian statesman published in the London Telegraph. The name is not given, but it is stated that he occupies a position which gives his words great authority. It is understood that the personage referred to is no other than M. de Witte, at one time the czar's most trusted adviser, but whose influence was superseded by the clique whose reckless policy brought on the war. He is quoted as saying that the war may end much sooner than people now imagine, not for the reason that Russia could not crush Japan when she has time to collect her strength for the undertaking, but because it is not to her interest to push the war to such an extremity. In a struggle to the death, "other states interested in the far east will vigorously urge their right to be heard, and Russia, weakened by her losses, financial and military, of a long campaign, would find it hard to disallow their claims."

Considering the course to be pursued, this statesman says that Russia is sufficiently great to be magnanimous without creating the impression of weakness and that an opportunity may be sought not only to end the war, but to propose a treaty of cordial friendship to be followed eventually by an offensive and defensive alliance. This describes the policy which M. de Witte favored when in office, and there was a time when such overtures would have been eagerly accepted by Japan, but that time has passed by. Japan is firmly allied with England. Russia cannot regain the advantages which she once possessed and which she forfeited by conduct as foolish as it was unscrupulous, but it is never too late to mend, and it is essential to the maintenance of Russia's standing as a power that this ruinous war in the east shall be terminated. Even should she be completely victorious in the end, she would be left in a state of exhaustion from which it would take years to recover, and meanwhile more important interests than those at stake in this war would be sacrificed.

The death of Prince Herbert Bismarck is specially pathetic in that it extinguishes the greatness of the once mighty house of Bismarck. His father trained him for his successor as chancellor of the German empire, and he had risen to be minister of foreign affairs when his father was forced out of the chancellorship by the present emperor in 1890. Count Herbert left office with his father, but has continued in public life as a member of the reichstag, in which his reputation was steadily growing, although he was too independent to identify himself with any party. Had he lived it is quite possible that he might eventually have played a great part in public affairs, and he acted like a man husbanding his powers while awaiting his opportunity. His death ends all that, and a seven-year-old boy is now Prince Bismarck. Many things are likely to happen in the career of that boy if he lives, and it is not at all impossible that the great force of character which is in the Bismarck blood may some day raise him to high public position. The great chancellor himself began as an obscure country gentleman, getting his start in public life by the force and decision which he displayed in the revolutionary period of the forties, attracting the attention of the king by the fact that while others doubted and wavered he always knew his own mind and had the courage of his convictions to an unbounded degree.

Objections to Japanese strategy now being printed are based on the fact that Japan is not omniscient. The mistakes are due to failure to know beforehand what the Russians would do.

Not Hand Bill Advertising

The ambitious city of Menominee, Mich., is advertising itself by having all the good-looking girls in town wear black silk stockings with the inscription "Menominee is a good town" worked in white a short distance above the ankle. We modestly maintain that newspaper advertising would be more widely read.—Ohio State Journal.

THE QUEER BEGGAR BOY.

One day the queerest beggar boy
He came to our back door;
He was the raggedyest one
I ever saw before.
My mother told him, "Come right in
And sit down here and rest,"
And gave him lots of buttered bread,
And cake, and turkey breast.

And then she gave him my old coat,
And hat that's almost new,
And then she said, "Poor child, poor child,"
And gave him playthings, too.
But 'stead of being happy, then,
And nice and satisfied,
As I'd 'a' been, that beggar boy
Jus' cried, and cried, and cried!

Talked of in Gotham

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Over in Brooklyn it is about as dangerous to be a mere pedestrian as to own an automobile. Eighteen persons have been killed and more than 100 injured by the street cars in the City of Churches since July 1. That is the record, and it is not a record of which to be very proud. Moreover, it is said the killing or injuring of a pedestrian is but an incident in the life of the crew of a Brooklyn trolley car, so common that the crew pays no attention to the matter. They give no help to the victim, simply notify the inspectors, who are supposed to come along with an ambulance and a doctor. Meanwhile the injured are allowed to suffer agony without attention.

Such was the treatment of James Cauffield, who lost both feet by being run over by a Court street car yesterday morning. When witnesses told the tale to the magistrate he promised an investigation, and Brooklyn people may hereafter hope for some attention after losing a leg or two to a street car. That's about all they can expect, however, as there is no arrangement to protect the lives of the people who happen at the time to be on foot. Motormen in New York and Brooklyn seem to think they own the streets, and pay little attention to the people who get in their way. This is not entirely their fault, however, but rather the fault of a system. Motormen are compelled to make time, and it's a mighty good excuse that saves one of them if he is late in his schedule. The corporation needs the money, and what's the loss of a few legs and arms now and then—if the legs and arms belong to someone else?

Where the Wine Agent Loses an Ad.

The wily wine agent, who is even more in evidence in New York than the theatrical press agent, and usually not as good a fellow, has met his match in Admiral Rogers, commandant of the New York navy yard. The battleship Connecticut is to be launched on September 29, and a bottle of real wine will mingle with the water of the bay. When it became known that a bottle of wine was to be broken over the nose of the Connecticut, every wine agent in New York tried to give the admiral a sample of his particular brand for the work. But the admiral declined.

He bought a bottle of wine and carefully washed off the label, so that only a few officers will ever know whether it was a bottle that cost $7.50 or only $2. In either case the result will be the same, and the name Connecticut will stick to the boat until it is shot to pieces by some marauding enemy—if such a thing is possible.

News for the Women.

Tomorrow morning there will be something new under the sun, but man's interest will only be aroused when he is compelled to foot the bills that this new scheme produces. It is the "new way retail store," where nothing but outer garments for women will be found on sale. It is to be opened by a manufacturing company to place its goods directly in the retail market, and it promises to be a popular imitation of those establishments for men which advertise "directly from the maker to the wearer, only one profit." Still we may expect that the profit will be large enough to shock the head of the house when the bills come in.

Argument Sounds Good Enough.

The State Association of Savings Banks is working to secure the repeal of the law taxing savings banks. A series of terse arguments are being prepared that are expected to convince the members of the coming legislature that it is a bad scheme to tax the savings of the comparatively poor. They say this attitude is maintained by the leading authorities on taxation, and that the impolicy of such a tax is also strongly urged by those who believe that society is best served by exempting beneficent activities from taxation. It is argued that while there is a profit in savings banks, the taxes are finally paid by the depositors themselves. But the legislators will have to decide.

Home to the Bowery.

The annual return of the hobo to his winter haunts in the Bowery is beginning, and all through that section of the city is heard the sound of greetings of summer tourists who traveled the different routes in their search for the elusive hand-out and kept clear of paths where "men wanted" signs might be expected to appear. There are probably 10,000 of these wanderers who make their home in the Bowery when the cold weather approaches. They infest the cheapest lodging houses and fill their skins as often as fortune and the charitable will permit with five-cent whisky. The more active the whisky the better they like it.

One of them told of a certain place where the first drink of five-cent whisky would make you gag, the second makes you go out in search of air, and the third—well, one doesn't know what happens after that. Another told of a place where white wine could be bought for a nickel, and two glasses of it gulped down would settle all one's troubles for some time to come. It's a great place, is the Bowery.

Things Doing at the Spa.

A large delegation of Tammany men will spend the week at Saratoga, but not for their health. Still, indications are the Tammanyites will have to take their medicine, as Davd B. Hill seems to have a pretty solid clutch on the Democratic situation in this state. What is going to happen even the wisest political forecasters are not yet prepared to say, but all are agreed that whatever David B. desires is it. He will make an effort to give an appearance of harmony to the event, but it is pretty certain that harmony will only come with the complete acquiescence of Tammany in everything Mr. Hill chooses to do to Mr. Murphy—which means some pretty hard bumps for the chieftain from Fourteenth street.

New Stunt by the Actor Man.

When you see a cab driving furiously down Broadway occupied by a couple of painted braves don't get excited, they are only actor men with their war paint on. Vaudeville artists now contract to show in more than one metropolitan house at the same time, and are consequently compelled to make rapid journeys through the streets to make good. "Jim" Corbett uses an automobile, but the majority of the lesser lights are content to ride in the omnipresent hansom. There is no time to dispense with the make-up and put it on again between acts, consequently they are seen in full regalia. And never was there anything more ghastly than an actor's make-up under the full light of the sun.

Street Car Fatalities

To the Editor of The Gazette.

Sir: Permit me to indorse what you say in the columns of your paper as to the large number of fatalities caused by traction cars. No doubt you are correct in ascribing these to the high speed at which cars are driven. The responsibility for the velocity at which cars are run rests probably not so much with the motormen and conductors as with the management which expects the employes to make the utmost number of trips possible within a given time and to make the required schedule without taking into consideration the delays and detentions of cars which in our narrow, crowded thoroughfares occur so frequently.

Do you not think, however, that another grave cause of danger, and one contributing to fatalities, is to be found in the fact that our traction cars are not equipped with fenders? And by fenders I mean an attachment affixed to the front of the car, by means of which persons would be thrown to either side of the track, or else toppled into a net, where they would be safe until the car could be stopped. Such a device is used practically everywhere except here. You may recall that some years ago the Pittsburgh newspapers urged that such a device or safeguard be used here, and the then management of the traction lines begged a little indulgence until by investigation and experiment they could find the best device, and promised so soon as it was found it would be used. It seems, although this was as much as eight or ten years ago, as if they must be much perplexed and confused in coming to a conclusion. Of course, the uncharitable view is that such an equipment would cost money and that the traction company will not spend this money until forced to do so, either by public opinion or by public officials who have more regard for the safety and welfare of the people than for the nickel saved by the use of a free ticket when using the traction cars.

Mr. Editor, have you ever stood on the sidewalk (of course, being a prudent man, regardful of life and limb, you would be on the sidewalk) and observed a large traction car booming along the street? Instinctively you shudder as you glance at it—its capacity for mischief and damage seems unlimited. You look at the front of the car; what do you see? What you won't see is the least sign of anything that would be of slightest service in reducing the force with which the car would strike any hapless person caught on the track. What can be seen on most of the cars is a coupling bar extending out from the front. Now, imagine a person, the innocent, thoughtless child, the adult on the track, unable to escape—smash—they are struck by an object weighing from five tons upwards, moving at a velocity of 8 to 20 miles an hour, or even greater speed. Can you imagine the force of the impact, first with the car, then with the ground, and then, if the poor unfortunate is not yet dead and is between the tracks, he or she is taken hold of by what traction magnates call fenders, and then—God help them.

Did you ever, Mr. Editor, scan a traction car with the purpose of looking at this "fender"—placed in front of the wheels, a few inches above the level of the tracks? Just imagine the poor, helpless person first struck and knocked down, then pushed and rolled by this merciful, humane "fender" until finally it passes the poor, bruised, bleeding form back to the cruel wheels, which, being cold and cruel, are yet kinder, as they relieve by death the sooner. In the interest of humanity I beg that you will so agitate this matter that the traction owners will be forced to adopt measures which will have the effect of reducing the number of fatalities.

N. G. AYRES.

The above letter is self-explanatory. It is an appeal that should not go without a hearing. Mr. Ayres overlooked our small paragraph referring to the fenderless cars, or he would not have needed to inquire what we think of them. The fenders on Pittsburgh cars are not designed to save the unfortunate pedestrian who gets in the way, but to keep him from getting under the wheels where jacks would be needed to get him out. Once the traction companies promised to equip with the best fenders to be had as soon as they could decide which pattern answered that description. Then they decided the triangular wheel guard complied with the city ordinance. Since then the public has been quiescent in the conviction that the traction people have it all their own way. Speed regulation is one measure of safety, the fender is another. Both should be applied.

Careless Youth.

Many lads, careless in the exuberant health and vitality of lusty youth, take chances and subject themselves to risks far beyond the limits of prudence or good judgment, because the years stretch away far and rosy before them, and they imagine that the generous future will afford ample opportunity to make good all errors and losses. If these adventurers in forbidden paths would reflect, now and then, on the hopeless and unending misery which they bring upon those for whom the conditions of life have become fixed and clearly defined they would surely mark out for themselves a more guarded course. There is no relief short of the grave for fathers and mothers whose sons bring them shame.—Cleveland Leader.

For the Under Dog.

"Sympathy turning from Japan to Russia" is the text of an occasional interview or editorial in a newspaper. If this is so, why? Some people cannot work up any sympathy for a victor, right or wrong. They always want to sympathize with a man who is being battered. The Russians are certainly entitled to the sympathy of this class. That a man was a bully and the aggressor before being bruised and beaten does not matter. He is down, and needs sympathy. And, sympathy being so cheap, it is easy to give. Not every man who gives sympathy would make a cash contribution.—Washington Star.

Financiers' Equipment.

It is claimed that the germs in greenbacks can be pressed out entirely with a hot flatiron. Capitalists should never venture out unless equipped with a charcoal stove and a flatiron. It's positively dangerous.—Atlanta Constitution.

PERSONALS

Among the travelers on the Southwestern Limited of the Pennsylvania last evening were three of the faculty of Columbia university, New York. They were en route to St. Louis to attend the sessions of the International Congress of Arts and Sciences. Each will read a paper at this congress. Prof. Monro Smith's subject will be "Present Problems of Roman Legal History." Prof. Edwin Seligman will discuss "Relations of Economics and Politics," and Prof. William A. Denning will treat of "History and Politics."

Five sections of the trains which are carrying to their eastern homes the returning pilgrims from the triennial conclave of the Knights Templar at San Francisco passed through Pittsburgh over the Pennsylvania last evening. Corinthian and Kadosh commanderies of Philadelphia, Pilgrim of Harrisburg, with a New Jersey and a Baltimore commandery, occupied the specials. "We were detained 20 hours by the burning snowsheds on the Union Pacific railroad," said one of the Philadelphia Knights. "We had a good time despite it, as the train was stocked with plenty of everything. This feature was the only unpleasant one on the trip. Our treatment at San Francisco was superb. Transportation everywhere, fruits, flowers and wines were ours in abundance. The city's hospitality will be long remembered."

James C. Ainsworth has been chosen physical director of the Wilmerding branch of the Young Men's Christian association.

Tobacco and Hearing.

A paper read at the recent congress of otalgy held at Bordeaux, France, by M. Delie dealt with the effect of tobacco on the auditory sense, and in it was described the injurious effect on the patient's hearing. There is a direct action, due to tobacco, on the auditory nerve, and the stimulating effect of the nicotine on other nerves is likely to add further complications, so that tobacco should always be used in moderation and especially where trouble with hearing is being experienced, and patients should be warned at an early date. In fact, there are certain conditions of the tissue when all smoking should be forbidden, and especially where the patient is comparatively young.—Harper's Weekly.

PECULIAR FIGHT AT DAVIS' HOME

REPUBLICANS IN THE LEAD

ELKINS, W. VA., Sept. 17.—Whether by design or accident, the Democrats in West Virginia have so distributed the favors in their hands that the heaviest of the fight for political supremacy in the state must be made in the Second congressional district, in which Congressman Alston G. Dayton seeks a re-election for the sixth time. The Democratic candidate for vice president, the candidate for governor, one candidate for supreme court judge, and the combined senate, chairman of the state Democratic committee and the member of the national committee, live in the Second district, as does also one of the candidates for elector-at-large.

This bunching of the big places was, perhaps, not done with any design, primarily, to insure the success of Mr. Dayton's opponent, Stewart W. Walker, but every Democratic candidate, from Senator Davis to Judge Dent, realizes it is of vital importance to redeem the Second district and let it be known in advance of the election if they are to infuse any confidence into party workers in other portions of the state.

Lucky Thing for Davis.

From the standpoint of the venerable candidate on the national ticket the situation is fortunate, since it would have been expected of him to carry his congressional district, in any event, and the more help he has the easier his task will be, granting the possibility of such a thing. But for the rest of the ticket the policy may be doubted.

While the Davis-McGraw combination has its personal grievance against Dayton, and each party to that political octopus has the humiliation of one or more defeats in which the congressional honors were the stakes and Mr. Dayton the winner, fresh in memory, neither has any political affection for the Democratic nominee for congress. The combine opposed his nomination and worked hard to have some of their own faction make the fight against him.

When they failed to find one to enter the race, and when it appeared Walker had the nomination secure, neither McGraw nor any Democrat by the name of Davis attended the convention, and McGraw adherents announced the nomination of Walker was equivalent to throwing down the fight in the Second district.

Dayton the People's Idol.

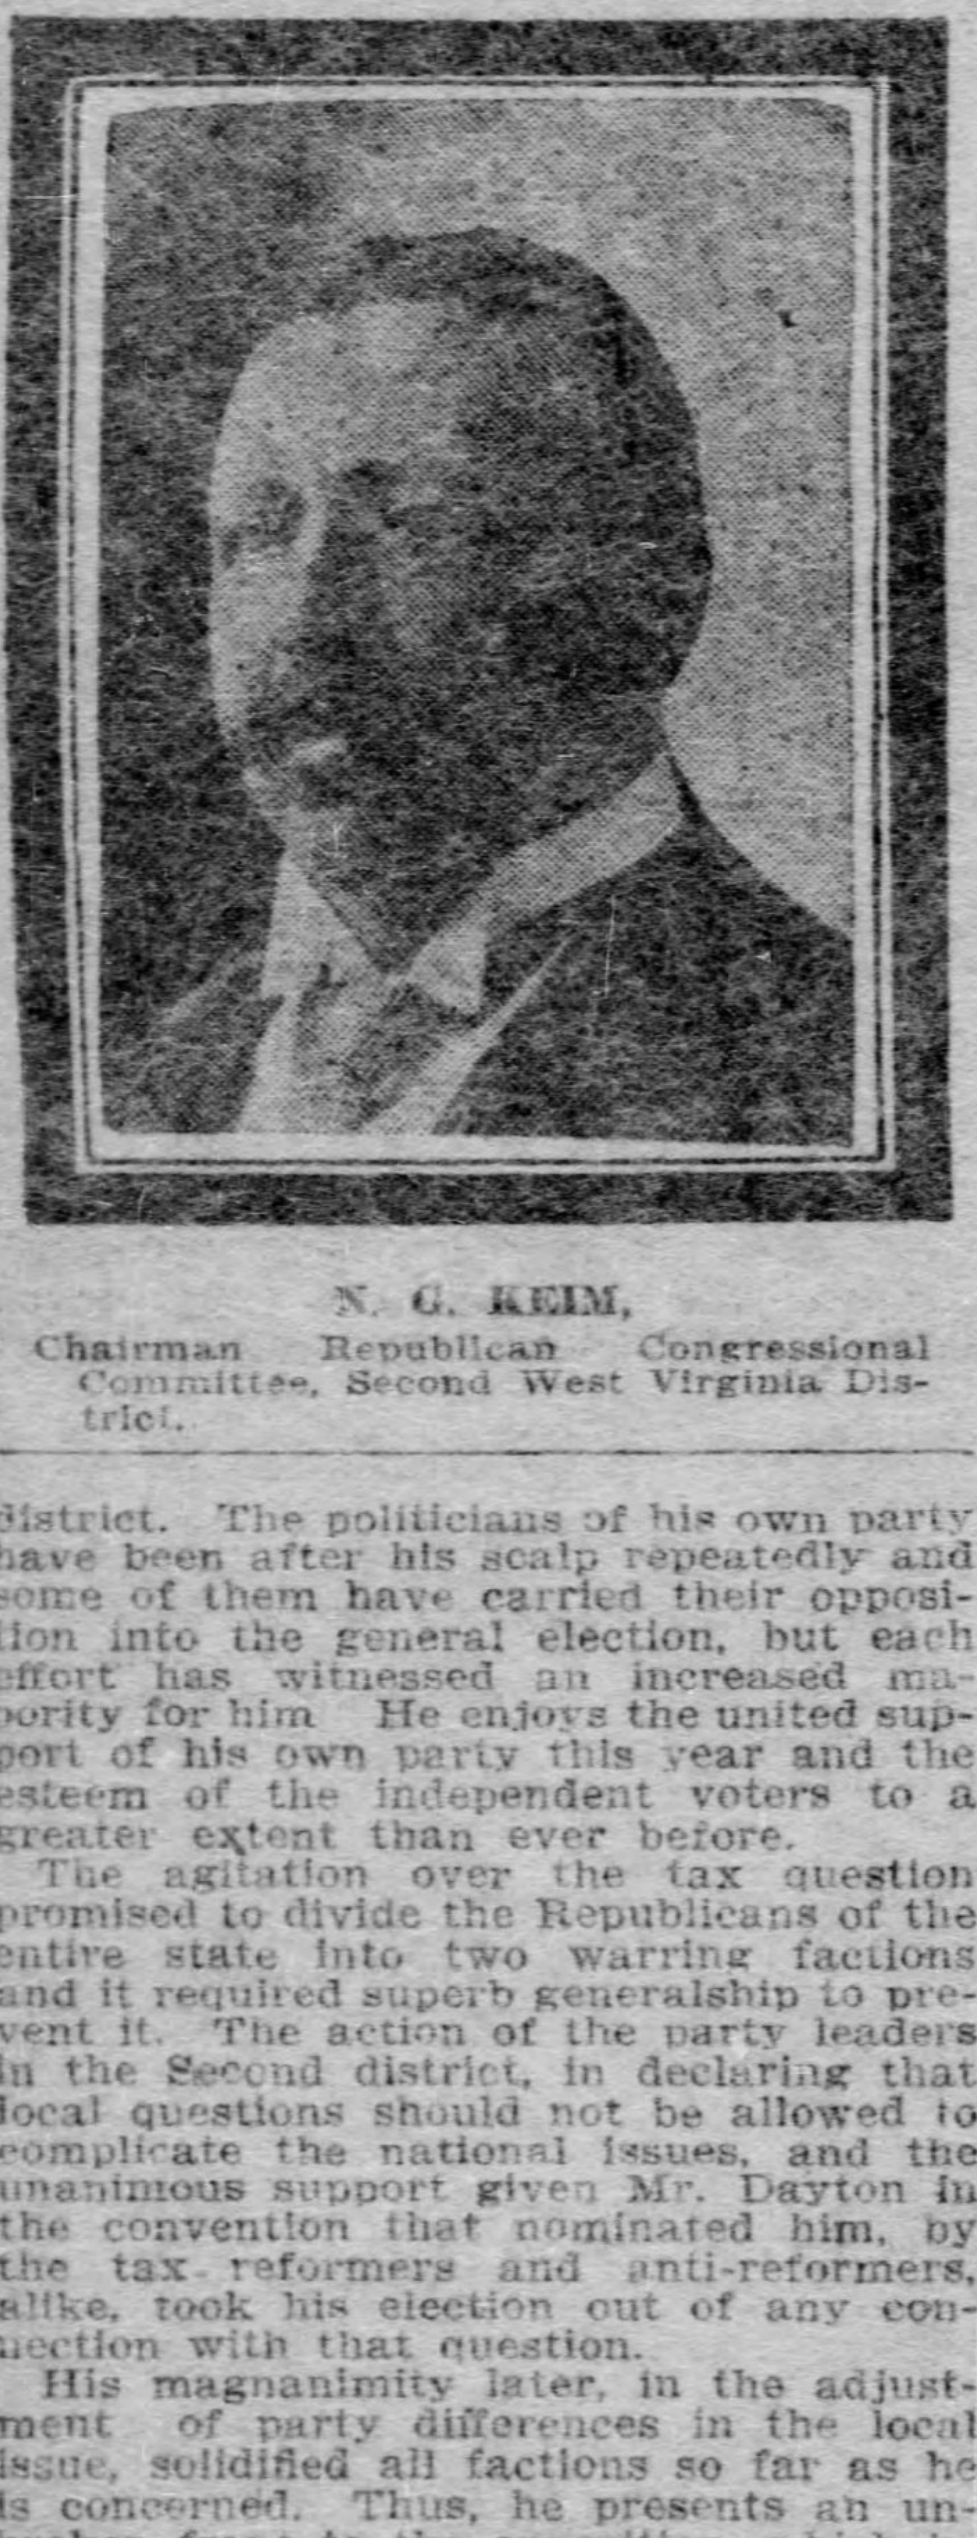
Mr. Dayton has for years been the political idol of the everyday people of his district. The politicians of his own party have been after his scalp repeatedly and some of them have carried their opposition into the general election, but each effort has witnessed an increased majority for him. He enjoys the united support of his own party this year and the esteem of the independent voters to a greater extent than ever before.



N. G. KEIM,
Chairman Republican Congressional Committee, Second West Virginia District.

The agitation over the tax question promised to divide the Republicans of the entire state into two warring factions and it required superb generalship to prevent it. The action of the party leaders in the Second district, in declaring that local questions should not be allowed to complicate the national issues, and the unanimous support given Mr. Dayton in the convention that nominated him, by the tax reformers and anti-reformers, alike, took his election out of any connection with that question.

His magnanimity later, in the adjustment of party differences in the local issue, solidified all factions so far as he is concerned. Thus, he presents an unbroken front to the opposition, which is, itself, in anything but a harmonious and enthusiastic frame of mind.

N. G. Keim of this city, who is chairman of the Republican congressional committee, is giving his entire time to the work of the committee at the headquarters at Terra Alta. He is one of the most astute and active practical politicians in West Virginia, and has had long training in the work in the district. A. J. Wilkinson, the chairman of the Democratic committee, is the state representative of the American Book Company, and is giving his time to the business of his company and working at politics at odd spells.

He has not yet opened headquarters, so far as anyone knows, and is out of humor with the machine. He was allowed by McGraw and Davis to become a candidate before the Democratic state convention for the nomination for secretary of state, and to make his fight to the end. He was unceremoniously thrown over for young Peterkin of Parkersburg, the son of a minister, and he has not forgotten the affront. And he is not of the make-up to lose sight of it for some years to come.

Is Airing His Troubles.

He is making the fight, so far as he is fighting at all, for the congressional candidate alone, and is not backward in letting his friends know that he has no interest in any other name on the ticket. The worst blow he is striking at the organization, however, is in making public his grievance against the combine, and the history of his relations with it. His late conferees are described as possessing the combined characteristics of "Mr. Carker" and "Uriah Heep," and he is a badly used politician.

With this fight between the two committeemen and the feeling of the combine against the congressional candidate, it is impossible to see how Chairman McGraw can hope to redeem the district for the Democrats and enthuse the rest of the state with the prospect of victory. Candidate Walker is making the best effort he can, unaided.

While the people of the district are agitated over the recent acts of the legislature on the tax question and giving all their energies to deciding whether they approve of them or not, Walker is talking of imperialism, militarism and the alleged connection of his opponent with the ship building trust. After a recent speech in Tucker county there was no one in the audience who could remember what his speech was about, and out of a dozen who were asked about it, 10 said they noticed he hadn't explained the tax laws.

The Davis-McGraw crowd is kept busy explaining there is no fight between it and Mr. Walker, and that Mr. Walker and his chairman misunderstood the position of the manipulators of the conventions.

One of the worst features of the Democratic campaign is the absolute want of any semblance of enthusiasm and confidence. For a time around the home of ex-Senator Davis there seemed to be some disposition to make the election here a matter of local pride, and a large number of Republicans were for joining in the spirit of the movement. But time has accustomed everyone to the novelty of having a vice presidential candidate always in sight, and no note is taken of the comings and goings of their venerable neighbor by the people of the town and community.

Davis No Drawing Card.

It is becoming a matter of serious doubt whether the normal Democratic vote can be polled for him. While a few of the more liberal Republicans still profess their intention to vote for the Democratic electors on account of the local candidate, opposition within the local Democracy is appearing. The most noted of the bolters is Jared L. Wamsley, an attorney of prominence throughout the state. He was elected prosecuting attorney three times in succession of Mr. Davis' home county, was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for house of delegates at the beginning of the present campaign, and has been a lifelong Democrat and a local leader for many years. He is making his opposition to the national ticket public, and defends the Roosevelt and Fairbanks ticket against all attacks.

There are many Democrats throughout the Second congressional district who say the sting has been taken out of the party whip since Senator Davis is on the ticket. They have, fresh in their minds, the times when the Davis influence has been arrayed against the Democratic organization in the district and they have never forgiven the defection. Many Democrats who will vote the straight ticket make no secret of their want of enthusiasm, and nowhere is there any expression of confidence over the prospects.

The work of the campaign is only now beginning, and the Democracy may get better when it gets in action than now appears possible. But, taking the difficulties in the way, the bitterness and cross purposes existing between the politicians, and the progress already made by the Republican organization, it looks as though, if the Second district is to be relied on to save the state to the Democrats, and West Virginia's electoral vote is to decide the result of the national election, the only possible business either Parker or Davis will have at Washington on the 4th of March next, will be to witness the ceremonies attending the inauguration of their successful opponents.

AUSTRALIAN ENGINEERS LIKE AMERICAN METHODS

David Thompson of Victoria Talks of Industrial Conditions in the Colonies—Labor Legislation Has Blocked Progress There, He Says.

"Australian engineering is rapidly becoming more and more Americanized. We are turning away from British methods," said David Thompson of Thompson & Co., mining engineers, Castlemaine, Victoria, Australia. Mr. Thompson reached Pittsburgh last evening and is at the Hotel Henry. His visit to Pittsburgh is to see the great industries here and to study Pittsburgh works of engineering. He carries letters of introduction to the officers of the larger Pittsburgh companies.

"The American tendency of Australian companies is very marked," he said. "We find the methods in vogue here best suited to our conditions as well as more modern generally. I noticed in England that the British companies which are taking up these methods are the ones that are getting business.

"Australia's industrial situation is a warning. Our progress has been effectually blocked by the labor legislation showered upon the colonies. The government has fixed minimum rates of wages and maximum working hours, until the situation confronting the manufacturer is that he has the privilege of paying the big wages for a short day and letting the men run his business. Those who have capital already invested must, of course, stand it, but no new capital is coming into the country. One look at the working conditions has turned new capital away.

"Pittsburgh is to be seen everywhere in the colonies. Carnegie steel products and Westinghouse airbrakes and electrical machinery are standard there. When I saw the British Westinghouse works at Trafford City, I made up my mind that my visit to the United States would not be complete without seeing the great parent works at East Pittsburgh.

"I wish to see also the coal mining in this district. In Australia mining is almost exclusively gold. We have had many American engineers there in recent years and they are doing excellent work. We have some mines with vertical shafts 4,000 feet deep. In some of these as many as 1,000 men are employed in three daily shifts. Then we have 'alluvial' mining, which is peculiar to Australia. At depths of 300 to 400 feet are found great rivers. It requires some times as long as four or five years to pump these out before the alluvial deposits on their bottoms can be removed to the surface and treated to find the gold which was carried there ages ago.

"Electrical mining is little known in our country, but that it will take the place of present methods in many ways is certain. It is undoubtedly the coming power."

PITTSBURGH WOMAN FATALLY HURT IN AN EXPLOSION

Vindictive Admirer Blows Up House, Killing One Negro and Injuring the Hostess.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

MARTINSBURG, W. VA., Sept. 18.—As the result of the jealousy of a rival lover John Harris, a well-known negro, is dead; Jennie Smith of Pittsburgh, has a broken back and will die, and Julia White is so severely cut that she may not recover, a house on East Race street back of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad shops is blown up, and Ernest Hollins and John Thompson are in jail charged with murder, the result of a Saturday night dance a the home of Julia White.

Hollins and Harris were rivals for the hand of the Smith woman, who was a belle of the negro quarter. Last night it was intended to hold a dance at Julia White's and Harris took the Smith girl to the house. Hollins, who was heard to remark earlier in the evening that she wouldn't stay in the house over night, is supposed to have gone with Thompson, a friend, and stolen the dynamite, placed it under the house and ignited it.

For squares around the houses were shaken, windows broken and the house itself so badly torn up that it will have to be destroyed. There is intense excitement among the negroes, but no trouble is anticipated.

Word was received in Sharpsburg yesterday afternoon of the death of "Irish Jack" Bingham at the Allegheny county home at Woodville, where he was taken last Thursday. "Irish Jack" was about 50 years of age and one of the best-known characters in the borough. For over 30 years he had worked at odd jobs about the borough, and lived in a shanty boat on the Allegheny river.

He leaves a wife and child in Sharpsburg, but had not lived with his family for years. He is said to have had wealthy relatives in Ireland who sent him a regular allowance for his support.

JOHN T. FULLERTON PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY

Man Well Known in Both Cities Came to His Death After a Long Illness.

John Turbett Fullerton, aged 63, brother of Common Councilman James M. Fullerton of the Fourth ward, Pittsburgh, died yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the home of his brother, William W. Fullerton, 511 Walker street, First ward, Allegheny. Mr. Fullerton's death was caused by serosis of the liver. He had been ill for a year and was confined to his bed for the last three months. A month ago he was taken to Cambridge Springs, but got no relief.

Mr. Fullerton was well known in both cities, years ago having been associated with his father and brother under the firm name of John Fullerton & Son at 966 Liberty street in the wholesale tobacco business. He was born in the Fourth ward, Pittsburgh, where the Union station now stands. He was married in 1861, when but 20 years of age, to Miss Katherine Bryar, and shortly after his marriage he enlisted in a company in Pittsburgh. He served one year in the civil war and was then taken ill with swamp fever in the south and discharged from the service.

John Turbett Fullerton.

After his recovery he was appointed chief clerk in the internal revenue office here under Collector William Little, and held this position for several years, later entering his father's store. He was in business with his father for a number of years, but was compelled to retire on account of physical infirmities. His wife died some years ago and his father died in 1901. His mother died in 1895. He is survived by one child, Mrs. Blanche D. Yeatman, who resides in London, England. He leaves three brothers and a sister—William W., Samuel R., James M. Fullerton and Mrs. Susan A. Barker, all of Pittsburgh. The deceased was a member of Col. O. H. Rippey G. A. R. post 231. The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

SCHMITT'S POKER DEN WAS RAIDED

Game Found in Full Blast Under Direction of Patrolman Who Lost an Inspectorship.

OTHER RAIDS WERE MADE

Ferdinand H. Schmitt, a patrolman who has a beat on lower Fifth avenue and who was only recently an inspector of police in the East End district, was fined $50 and costs yesterday morning by Magistrate Kane for keeping a gambling house. It is supposed that he will be summoned before the police trial board to offer an explanation. It will not be the first time Schmitt has been before the police trial board in connection with gambling charges. As a matter of fact Schmitt's involuntary retirement from the East End police inspectorship was primarily brought about by the lengths gamblers were permitted to go—apparently under protection. When Director Moore finally had the East End conditions laid bare before him he was astounded. There was nothing left to do then but shift Schmitt. It has never yet been explained why he was retained on the police force in any capacity. It has never been definitely determined just where his "pull" or "influence" comes from.

The house raided early yesterday morning is located at 313 Ella street, in the Bloomfield district. It is said to have been under suspicion for some time, and it is also said that several complaints about the house have been lodged with Director Moore. The raid was made by Capt. Peter Walsh and Lieut. Lawrence Bartley who, with four plain clothes men, went to the house, surrounded it, and forced their way in. A seven-handed poker game was in full blast in the dining room and Schmitt stood beside the table running the "kitty." No resistance was offered and the men were taken to the Forty-third street police station. Several decks of cards, chips and other paraphernalia of a gambling room were confiscated.

Hearings at the several police stations yesterday were dull, barring the Schmitt case. At Central station Matthew Moss and Chris Thomas were sent to the workhouse for 60 days. They were loafing about the Tenth street bridge and could give no good account of themselves.

Capt. Peter Walsh, Lieut. Lawrence Bartley and a squad of officers raided a house at Fortieth and Willow streets early yesterday morning and arrested inmates after a desperate battle. Sam Vachover and Frank Mayer and six visitors were taken. All of the men put up a fight. Mayer and Officer Andrew Willets fought to the head of a long flight of steps and both rolled all the way down, where Mayer, who is a giant in strength, fought until beaten into insensibility. At the hearing before Magistrate Kane yesterday the two alleged proprietors were fined $50 and costs and the others $5.

The same officers also raided a small store at Forty-third and Foster streets kept by Louis Sullivan and arrested him and one visitor. They found 160 bottles of a beverage labeled "Orange Cider." It proved to be bottled beer of a Baltimore brew. Sullivan settled with the magistrate by paying $100 and costs, and the visitor paid $5.

Harry Bailey was held over by Magistrate Kane for further examination. He is believed to have been connected with the looting of the Verner club house in Matilda street several days ago.

Magistrate Neglev had 42 prisoners before him at the East End and Oakland stations yesterday. He fined Joseph Barry of Brady street $10 for keeping a gambling house and four visitors paid $3 and costs each. Verner Johnston, a negro, charged with keeping a disorderly house at 662 River avenue, was fined $50 and costs. Eight men and women arrested in the house paid a dollar each.

William Gordon and eight visitors were arested at 10 Third avenue yesterday by Capt. James McEvoy and a squad of officers. Cornelius Kelly, 639 Second avenue, and George Danberger, 17 Shingiss street, were also arrested on the same charge—keeping a disorderly house.

A. W. Ford, a sailor, aged 19, was taken back to Baltimore yesterday by Supt. M. H. Campbell of Allegheny. He surrendered as a deserter several days ago.

TRIED TO DROWN HERSELF.

A Slavish Woman Jumps Into Monongahela River Because Some One Stole $70 from Her.

Despondent because someone stole $70 from her, Mary Stonic, a Slav, employed as scrub woman in a Water street restaurant, tried to drown herself in the Monongahela river, under the Baltimore & Ohio railroad station, yesterday morning. The woman threw herself into the water and was rescued by several rivermen. Policeman Albert Briggs sent her to Central station. Her condition was such when she reached there that she was taken to the Homeopathic hospital.

The woman was in Central station nearly all day Saturday, as it was thought she was demented. Physicians from the Charity department made an examination of her and declared her sane. She was then released. Grieving over the loss of $70 which she had saved she became violent.

Three men were arrested for the robbery Saturday, and one of them was sent to the workhouse as a vagrant. Yesterday Thomas Kelly was arrested in connection with the robbery and was sent to the workhouse for 60 days.

NEW HOSPITAL IS TO BE ACCEPTED

Magnificent Buildings Are to Be Turned Over to the City This Week.

WILL ACCOMMODATE MANY

The city authorities will this week accept the new Municipal hospital from the contractors and formally open the institution, which has been completed at a cost of $110,000 after two years of labor. Members of councils are to be invited to attend the formal opening of the hospital, which is a magnificent affair and a great credit to the city. Few persons had an idea that the new Municipal hospital was to be of such an elaborate character as the picture of it in this issue of The Gazette shows it to be.

On the site where once stood old shanties, used as wards for smallpox patients, stands one of the finest looking municipal hospitals in the country. It consists of two large buildings, the administration building and the hospital proper, which are connected. They are constructed of brick, with fancy stone trimmings and finished throughout with hard wood and equipped with all modern appliances.

The hospital was built with bond funds voted by the people in 1899, and enough money is left over to furnish the entire hospital. In the foreground of the picture stands the administration building, two and one-half stories high with basement. It is 60 feet long and 50 feet wide. This structure has 16 rooms, about 12 by 14 feet in size. The superintendent and his family, the resident physician and nurses will reside here.

The building that projects from the left side, in the rear of the administration building, is the hospital proper, which contains three wards, one for the diphtheretic, one for erysipelas and another for scarlet fever cases. This is connected with the administration building by a roofed hallway about 200 feet long. The hospital is 350 feet long and 50 feet wide. It is estimated that it will accommodate from 250 to 300 patients. The hospital building is T-shaped and connected with each ward is a sun-room, built with large panes of glass in the sides and roof to permit the sun's rays to fall upon the convalescent patients who will bask underneath. The old frame hospital, a portion of which is shown in the extreme right side of the picture, will still be used for smallpox patients, and when overcrowded the surplus patients will be put in the new building. The small frame structure that stands in front of the administration building is the old chemical engine house used when the old frame buildings were standing. The engine house will be torn down, as the hospital is equipped with plenty of hose and a large water tank sufficient to give 60-pound pressure. The brick building to the extreme left is the new power house.

The Municipal hospital site covers no less than three acres of ground. The large vacant space in front of the administration building, where the old wards stood, will be a pretty lawn and flower garden next summer. Supt. Burke of the parks is now engaged in preparing plans for the making of a pretty landscape on this spot this fall. Trees will be planted and the environments of the new hospital made as attractive as possible. John Eastman is superintendent of the hospital.

PITTSBURGH'S GREATEST PAPER WAS THE GAZETTE

Sunday Readers Treated to a World of News and Useful and Entertaining Literature.

Yesterday's readers of The Gazette were treated to one of the best productions of the newspaper maker's art. From the title page of the first section to the last page of the last supplement the paper was filled with solid, sensible reading, that could not fail to benefit, instruct and entertain. Nothing escaped the keen news seekers of The Gazette staff, scattered in all parts of the world. From the most momentous matters now disturbing the peace of Europe to the event of minor importance here at home, it was all noted and served to the readers of Pittsburgh's greatest paper.

In the war situation in the far east it is announced that the Japanese are advancing on Mukden and continuous outpost fighting is now taking place within 20 miles of the Russian stronghold. The Russians are reported to be retreating on Harbin. Field Marshal Oyama has been requested by the mikado to wind up the Manchurian campaign before winter sets in. Gen. Kuropatkin is happy over the czar's message of thanks to himself and his troops and tells of the retreat from Liao-Yang, in which he claims he was the victor. Russia is preparing an army of 400,000 men which she will put into Manchuria at once and will establish supply depots at Harbin and Lake Baikal.

The strike of the Socialists is spreading in Italy and much disorder is resulting. One man has been killed and the government is taking strenuous measures to prevent the spread of the strike.

In domestic affairs the dedication of the monuments to Pennsylvania soldiers who fought at the battle of Antietam was covered fully in The Gazette. A Peoria paymaster was knocked down and robbed in a busy street. The mayor of Thomson, Ill., was murdered by a bandit whom he had placed under arrest. A San Francisco bank was robbed of $20,000 by a thief who simply walked in and helped himself. The Leiter family was informed of a plot to steal the body of Joseph Leiter, Sr., from the family vault. The French author of "The Simple Life" arrived in this country to visit President Roosevelt.

In the political world The Gazette gave all the reliable news of the day. Congressman Sherman announced that New York is safe for Roosevelt and will be overwhelmingly Republican. West Virginia mountaineers have swung into line and declared their allegiance to the principles of the Republican party. Penrose appointed the state committees. Senator Foraker made a great speech at Chicago in which he declared that the Democracy is tainted with vagaries. George Ade visited the president and told him that Indiana will surely go Republican by at least 40,000.

Locally there could be no more complete paper than The Gazette. Mayor Hays said Director Moore will soon step down and out. Drs. Eyers and Tucker lost their damage case against Mrs. Amy H. DePuy. St. Joseph's hospital, on the South Side, is ready for opening tomorrow. The electrical engineers of the world will gather in force in Pittsburgh today. The Pittsburgh Railways Company has decided to introduce tourist cars on its lines. The grievance committee of the Railway Trainmen's union is meeting in Allegheny to count the vote on the strike question. The trouble between Millionaire Arrott and Broker J. W. Hanly went to court and was exclusively told of in The Gazette.

In the financial world The Gazette told of all the news of the affairs which interest men in the market. On the sporting pages every event of importance from the winning of the Pittsburgh-St. Louis game by the Pirates to the humblest football note, was given its place. In the magazine and woman's sections the paper was of unusual excellence and the general result was one of the best Sunday papers that could be found anywhere.

PARISHIONERS FAVOR DEAN HARTNEDY'S PLAN

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 18.—The Very Rev. Dean M. M. A. Hartnedy has resigned as rector of St. Peter's parish, after a quarter of century as pastor. This action was brought about through interference with the dean's plans to erect a church edifice, modeled after St. Peter's in Rome, at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars. The people of the parish were a unit in insisting the building go ahead according to the dean's plans and have petitioned the bishop of Columbus accordingly. Dean Hartnedy has been requested to remain as pastor. A meeting was held tonight to further the dean's plans regarding the church.

CZAR'S ARTILLERY DOES FINE WORK

JAPANESE QUIETLY EFFICIENT

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WITH THE FIRST JAPANESE ARMY, TIEN-SHI-TIEN, MANCHURIA, Aug. 12.—The lessons of the campaign are a text constantly before the eyes of the military observers with this army. They have made no revolutionary discoveries thus far, indeed, the chief lesson has been the overshadowing importance of that complete preparation which has made every cog of every wheel of the great machine slide quietly into its groove at the appointed minute, and the attention to details, for lack of which the servants of the czar are wasting so much brave food for powder.

The work of the Russian artillery early on July 31 commanded the highest praise from every one. It was in strong contrast to the showing made at the Yalu. In every respect it was a credit to the Russian service. Their gun positions were selected by engineers, who appreciated the possibilities of the country, as they had failed to do at the Yalu. The contour of the hills, which push forward into the valley on both sides of Taowan, afforded a line of defense which, speaking roughly, extended nearly in a semicircle.

Most of the Russian guns looked down into the valley, and also commanded the lower ranges of the hills beyond, where the seven Japanese batteries must find cover. They presented to the enemy only skyline targets, difficult to gauge. Consequently, they gave the Japanese artillery a hard day and compelled the batteries with the Japanese left division, attempting to flank the Russian right, to shift their ground repeatedly to avoid the fierce and accurate fire poured upon them.

Russian Bravery Beyond Praise.

Moreover, the bravery of the Russian gunners was beyond all praise. On riding over the battleground afterward it was seen although the Japanese shells had hardly been able to reach those Russian guns on the high peak behind Taowan, the other batteries had endured a perfect hailstorm of shrapnel, which were under foot everywhere, while common shells had torn gaps over every few feet of ground about the guns. Many statements have appeared about the superiority of the Japanese guns, but their work so far has illustrated the western aphorism: "Success is not in holding a good hand, but in playing a poor hand well." It is conceded by the experts on the field that the Russian guns are better than the Japanese and the ratio to insure equality should be about six Japanese guns against four Russian.

But the showing made by the Russian infantry leaves much to be explained. If their trenches had been held by marksmen like the Boers, there would have been no question of the Japanese reaching them without heavy loss, if at all. They were dug in splendid positions on the sides and the summits of hills and the approaches across the valley and up the hillsides had little cover except patches of corn.

Russian Defense Weak.

Yet the Russian defense was either remarkably weak or only a demonstration, because the Japanese of the central division hit by their fire numbered only a score or two. Moreover, there were the same blunders in management that marked the Yalu. The infantry in front of the Japanese left fought well and maneuvered skillfully. But late on the night of the battle two Russian battalions appeared north of Taowan in front of the Japanese right flank and then retired without opening fire, and the purpose of their movement remains a mystery.

At Henling, where a thousand were cut to pieces, and where, as at Hamatan, they had a brass band that left its instruments on the field, they gave one of the finest exhibitions of futile bravery witnessed during the war. They were marching in close column of fours under a destructive fire and although men were cut down by squads, they never broke ranks nor retreated. The uselessness of the sacrifice was as eloquent as its courage and the credit for the former belonged to the officers.

The great number of casualties among the Russian officers, and particularly their generals, while no Japanese general has been hit, has been due largely to the different theories of generalship followed in the armies.

Japanese Generals Directors.

The generals of the Japanese are directors, while the Russians cling to the old Skobeleff tradition of a commander at the head of his men leading the fighting. From the Japanese lines we can see the white-coated Russian officers riding conspicuously before their troops while from the Russian side it must be hard to discover the Japanese officers, because their uniforms are so like those of the rank and because Gen. Kuroki and the lesser generals usually are somewhere behind the fighting line, managing their battles by telegraph and telephone.

Probably electricity has never played so great part in warfare before as it does with the Japanese. Every general of brigade in the field is, like a modern ambassador, "at the end of a wire," which his divisional commander controls, and the generals of divisions are in touch by telegraph or telephone with the corps commander. The engineers run wires after the columns with marvelous rapidity.

Firing is heard somewhere at the front. A detachment of engineers emerges from headquarters, pack ponies carrying bundles of light bamboo poles, while coolies follow them with coils of slender copper wire. The poles have pointed ends, and are quickly planted, the wire spreads out as fast as men can uncoil it and a field telephone is at work.

Not Used by Russians Extensively.

No evidences have been seen as the army advanced into the enemy's country that the Russians employ the telegraph extensively. There are no traces of wires or poles, except the old Chinese line from Antung to Pekin.

The Russian generalship is more spectacular and perhaps inspires the soldiers with greater courage, but the Japanese is more business-like. These generals do not play to the galleries at all. The censorship which they enforce tends to deprive them of their just dues in reputation. They believe the mention of names would give clue to the strength and the characteristics of the organization opposing them. Gen. Okzawa gathered his troops in the fog of early morning on the fourth of July and prevented the Russians from seizing the Motien-Ling. He turned Kellar's almost successful attack of the 17th into a disaster and his soldiers from the rocks above Yushitling shot down 1,000 Russians without any compensating damage to themselves. He is a strategist and a fighter. In England or America, he would be a popular hero, but the newspapers which come to camp fail to mention him.

Kuroki of the Moltke Type.

How unpopular a censorship that excludes exploitation of generals would be with certain other armies is appreciated by correspondents who have accompanied those armies. Gen. Kuroki is a quiet and unassuming gentleman, rather the Moltke type than the theatrical general who rides about exhorting and cursing his men. His type is apparently the prevailing one in the Japanese service. Sometimes it appears that he has worked out his plan of battle so perfectly before the event, that he can sit down confident of its fulfillment, and takes little further interest in the proceedings. During the critical hours of July 31, when his infantry was advancing across the valley to charge the Russian intrenchments on the heights, he sat in the courtyard of a Chinese temple, chatting casually with members of his staff. A court painter could have made no battle picture there. Gen. Kuroki's force partakes of his character. It might be described as the silent army. The Russians have their regimental bands, which play at sunset hours and on the march and during battle, and their soldiers advance to the sound of the drum. They chant their evening hymn around the soup kettles, and sometimes the roar of a patriotic chorus rolls through the hills from the Russian campfire to the ears of the Japanese pickets. But in this campaign, although the infantry carry bugles, by whose notes they march in peace times, I have never heard the sound of a trumpet near the front.

Music Not Part of Their Life.

No war songs are sung. The band of the Imperial Guards has been at headquarters occasionally and the magnificent service in memory of the dead at Feng-Wang-Cheng was concluded with a ringing benediction of trumpets. But music has no part in the soldier's daily life. Their enthusiasm is displayed to the ear only in moments of victory by that weird and stirring cheer "Banzai," with which they charge.

Nor is it a convivial army. The few camp followers, whose presence near the front is sanctioned, sell cigarettes, fans, handkerchiefs, towels, soap, toothbrushes, writing paper and envelopes. The nearest shop where a bottle of saki or beer can be bought is at Feng-Wang-Cheng, 30 miles to the rear, and that means that the officers get very little, and the soldiers none.

Tea, cigarettes and fans are the luxuries; fishing, writing letters and reading newspapers their amusements.

Murder Over Game of Cards.

MONONGAHELA, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—Murder was the sequel to a game of cards at Hazelkirk, a mining town up the Pigeon Creek valley, last night, when George Kopko shot George Nazok in a fight over $3. From friends of the murdered man it was learned today that Nazok's wife and child left their native land five days ago and are now on the ocean en route here.

Faithful Wives Follow Their Husbands Through Prison Doors

"For better or worse" is the way the marriage service reads and when the "worse" leads to a prison cell, the wives of foreigners on the South Side have evidenced they are ready to accept the bad end of the bargain.

Yatsie Marguia, a Russian Pole, is the father of a five days' old baby. He is as happy over it as Czar Nicholas is over his. Like his imperial master, Marguia had to have a christening and yesterday was the day set. When the police called at the Marguia home yesterday afternoon, the place was in an uproar. There had been unlimited beer, judging from the condition of the participants.

When the patrol wagon backed up and the men of the party were loaded into it, the police were treated to a surprise. With tears streaming down their faces, with imprecations on the officials who interfered with the jollification, the wives of five of the prisoners climbed into the wagon and refused to be separated from the men they had sworn to love, honor and obey. There was nothing to do but to lock them all up. Mrs. Marguia was afterward released as her condition was such it was deemed unsafe to keep her at the station house.

After the patrol wagon had departed, Officer William C. White found several babies in the house. They were all engaged in a lusty howl for their imprisoned mammas and some food. There was no help for it. The officer had to tramp through the streets of the South Side with both arms full of squirming, crying babies, and deliver them to their respective mothers at No. 7 police station. They will all have a hearing this morning—all but the babies.

INDEPENDENT LINE FROM BALTIMORE TO PITTSBURGH

Philadelphia Capitalists Interested in Projected Telephone System—Want Franchise at Cumberland, Md.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CUMBERLAND, MD., Sept. 18.—A deal is pending looking to a through independent telephone system between Baltimore and Pittsburgh. A meeting was held at the office of J. C. Watson at Keyser last night, attended by Philadelphia capitalists, with that end in view. The Maryland Telephone Company of Baltimore is behind the matter.

The Western Maryland Telephone Company, which operates the local independent system, is about to sell and the Chesapeake and Potomac Bell Telephone Company is the prospective purchaser. The local independent system, which made great inroads on the Bell company here, cost about $100,000. The Maryland was also after the Western Maryland system, but the latter withdrew from the consolidation deal. The Maryland will ask for another franchise in this city. The through independent line will be a consolidation of a number of local lines.

The Maryland company has about completed through service from Baltimore to Romney, W. Va., and can reach Keyser via the latter place. By combining with the systems in Garrett county, Md., and Somerset county, Pa., which has connections with Pittsburgh, and the building of several links the Baltimore-Pittsburgh through line would be a reality. A leading official of the Chesapeake and Potomac was here several days negotiating for the purchase of the Western Maryland.

Nomination Offered Martin.

YORK, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—Ex-Senator William A. Martin of Gettysburg has been offered the nomination for the Twentieth congressional district. Tuesday night the conferees of York and Adams counties will again meet at Hanover, and if Mr. Martin accepts it will be with a view to forcing Charles H. Duttera off the ticket. The York county contingent tried to entrap Mr. Duttera, but failed at their last meeting.

Two Miners Die of Burns.

MAHANOY CITY, Sept. 18.—Cyrus Blackwell and Joseph Incas, miners who were burned by an explosion of gas at the Primrose mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company on Saturday, died today in the Miners' hospital. Joseph Copley, who was burned at the same time, is not expected to live.

Unknown Foreigner Killed.

GREENSBURG, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—An unknown foreigner was run down and killed on the Southwest Pennsylvania railroad in East Greensburg at an early hour this morning.

AGED 80 AND NEVER HAS TASTED LIQUOR

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WILKESBARRE, Sept. 18.—Josiah Williams Churchill of Clarks Green, near here, who went to the Lackawanna county Prohibition convention to see if he could find a better temperance man than himself, has returned home. He failed. He is now 80 years old and never drank a drop of strong liquor, used beer, or tobacco, danced, or was in a theater. Furthermore, for only two weeks of his life did he drink tea or coffee.

"If I found a temperance man who could beat that, I would have treated him," he said.

"To what?" he was asked.

Mr. Churchill is a direct descendant of Roger Williams.

"My mother was a good Christian woman," he said, "and I was brought up with a fear of alcoholic drinks, of tobacco, of the theaters and of dancing. It was not until I was 24 years old that I touched coffee or tea and then only for two weeks. I did not give them up because I think they are bad, but because they did not agree with me. I was brought up on milk and water and as I am 80 years old, and in fine health, strong and robust, it is apparent that they have been good for me."

Steamer Friesland Brings 700 Immigrants to Philadelphia—All Are Held Up.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—Nearly 700 cut-rate immigrants came in on the steamship Friesland today from Liverpool. They had taken advantage of the $7 50 rate. They were not allowed to land. The weeding-out process will be effected tomorrow. It is thought many will be deported.

A German commercial traveler, who came steerage to save money, refused to be vaccinated and declares he will go back home first. He will have to pay his fare, as the steamship company officials say they are not obliged to carry him free.

COST OF WAR MANEUVERS WITHIN APPROPRIATION

Expenses of Moving Troops to and from Manassas, Together With Maintenance and Pay Amounted to About $750,000.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—The army maneuvers which were concluded last week at Manassas cost the government three-fourths of a million dollars. The expenses were just about what the war department had figured on, and unless the damages for injury to the farms over which the soldiers tramped run up alarmingly, the cost will be within the department's estimate.

Congress appropriated $1,000,000 last year for the army maneuvers. They were to be held in the west as well as in the east, the war department selecting the southern part of California as the battlefield for the Pacific coast division. The eastern operations were regarded as more important and the bulk of money was allotted for them. The matter was handled by the general staff, which gave $790,000 to the Atlantic division and the balance to the westerners.

The item of transportation always being heaviest in war costs, the railroads got $450,000. This is not surprising when it is remembered that troops were hauled to Manassas from points as remote as Maine in the east and Texas in the west.

The item of pay was the next heaviest, amounting to $190,000, although the allotment was $233,000. Uncle Sam paid a salary to every person who took an active part in the maneuvers, each soldier being paid for nearly two weeks' work. The cost of feeding the army of 30,000 soldiers was $80,000, and the cost of all the ammunition was $24,000.

CANADIAN STEEL TARIFF WILL AFFECT AMERICANS

New Law Is Expected to Cause Decrease in the Importation of Rails from United States.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—That the Canadian tariff on steel rails, which will go into effect on November 30, will be a hard blow to the steel companies in this country all experts in the steel trade agree.

The rail business with the Canadian lines was being developed rapidly and last year the United States Steel Corporation sold to that country rails to the amount of $1,397,858, while the companies of Great Britain sold only about $500,000 more.

This was a very encouraging fact to the steel companies here and as the roads in Canada were preparing extensive improvement and development plans that would, no doubt, cause many orders to be secured here, the embargo placed on steel exports by that country will lose to the steel companies in this country one of their best customers.

SELF-DECEPTION DESTROYS SOUL

DECEIVER IS TO BE DREADED

"Let no man deceive himself," I. Cor. iii:18, was the text of the sermon of the Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester, at the Christ Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning. On his topic: "Self Deception," he said:

The world is full of deception. Persons and things are often not what they seem. "Surely every man walketh in a vain show," the Psalmist says. That saying has a larger measure of truth today than ever before. As society grows older, it becomes more artificial, less frank and open, the shows of vanity multiply. There is more conventionality, more mistaking appearances for reality, more deception. Men and women are full of vain opinions, foolish hopes and wrong estimates. These go to swell that great power known as public opinion, which surrounds us at all times and is continually seeking to give form and pressure to our lives.

It seems strange that with so much in the world to deceive us we should conspire with it to accomplish our undoing. But such is the sad, unmistakable fact.

There is no such dangerous and successful deceiver as a man's own self. We often do not see things truly and do not want to. We turn upon them a false light. How we enjoy some of our air castles of false valuations! Few persons wish to know the truth about themselves. If, in some moment of self-revelation, they catch some glimpses of their weaknesses or imperfections, they turn their attention to more agreeable objects.

Our passions often deceive us. They may bear us up to heaven and in almost the same breath thrust us down to hell. Faber says: "All human feeling grown to be intense, comes nigh to sin."

"Pride goeth before destruction," the proverb says. It magnifies the good in us, parades us our necessities, and hides our weaknesses and failures. The successful man today is in many cases intense, energetic, full of enterprise. He knows what he wants, he has his eyes fixed upon the goal of his ambition, and never looks anywhere else. He does not really care for anything else. He is narrow, but he does not know what breadth of character is. There are whole continents of knowledge and moral achievement which he has never entered; but he knows the rewards of trade and does not wish to be encumbered by any useless baggage. He does not see what he is missing, but only what he is winning. The kingdom of greatness and, indeed, the kingdom of heaven to some men come to mean their business. Manhood is the ability to make money. This is the standard by which they measure everybody and everything.

One of the saddest things in human nature is the fact that men, while pursuing a purely worldly career, do not see how much they squander and what an awful price they pay for their gain. Strange to say, man can lose his dearest and most substantial possession, his character, and not know it until it is gone. Nothing is left but his poor, dwarfed soul and the awful mystery of the future. Awful mystery, did I say? This is clear. That "undiscovered country" is the kingdom of justice, the kingdom of love and gladness. What fellowship can a spiritual dwarf have with such a kingdom, what abiding place?

KEEPING THE SABBATH IN THE LAW AND THE LETTER

Forgetfulness of the Fourth Commandment Means General Submergence of the Social Body.

"The Proposed Campaign of Education in Sabbath Keeping" was the subject chosen by the Rev. Dr. J. T. McCrory at the Third United Presbyterian church yesterday morning. His text: "The Sabbath was made for man," Mark ii:27, has perhaps been more discussed in this connection than any other in the Bible. Dr. McCrory said:

The various uses made of that statement of Jesus proves the need of instruction on the question of the Sabbath. There are at least three lines along which education on this subject ought to proceed, and each of these lines has to do with law. And law, as you know, "hath its seat in the bosom of God and its voice is the harmony of the world."

There is the application of the law of the Sabbath to man as a worker. In no part of the world is this phase of the subject more important than in this industrial center of the world. The supremacy of the Pittsburgh district in the industrial world represents toil; the expenditure of energy, physical, mental, nervous and spiritual. To meet this drain we must know the law of the conservation of this kind of energy. Now it is a fact, as well established as the law of gravity, that Sabbath keeping is the key to good health and everything that goes to make up physical wellbeing. This fact the hard-working man ought to know, and the church that fails to give him this instruction is not his friend. The Sabbath as a day of rest from labor belongs to the toiler by the law of God and the law of his own life, and he should demand it at every cost.

There is the application of this law to the man as a worshiper. Now, there may be difference of opinion as to just what is the relation of the Fourth Commandment to the Christian, but every thoughtful man will agree that it is tremendously important that we be right in our opinion, for the law will hold, whatever our opinions may be. These four things are certain and ought to be drilled into the church: First, obedience to God requires some kind of Sabbath keeping. Second, growth of Christian character requires regular Sabbath keeping. Third, activity in the service of Christ and of the church requires this rest day. Fourth, opportunity for reaching the unsaved masses depends on the cessation of labor one day in seven.

There is the application of the law of the Sabbath to man as a citizen. We say all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. But all governments have some moral standard to which they refer. This is a Christian nation, so our supreme court has decreed. Our ideas of right and wrong are founded on the moral law, the Decalogue. The state has no more right, therefore, to ignore the fourth statute of that moral code than it has the seventh or sixth or any other. If to allow murder, theft, unchastity, prostitution and like vices and crimes without restraint would bring social ruin, so will disregard of the law of the Sabbath. Indeed, as there is no other form of immorality so manifest as the breach of the Sabbath law, there is no other so demoralizing on the community. Sabbath desecration begets a spirit of general lawlessness that is soon felt to the very extremities of the social body.

PASTOR RUSSELL DISCOURSED ON GREAT DAY OR SIN ATONEMENT

Spoke in the Allegheny Bible House Chapel on the Celebration of Yoma Kippur.

JEWISH TYPE AND ANTI-TYPE

Pastor Russell was with the Allegheny Bible House congregation yesterday. Next Sunday he expects to be in Washington, Pa. To a large and attentive audience of yesterday he said:

Tomorrow Jews all over the world will celebrate "Yoma Kippur"—Sin-Atonement—on the Day of Atonement, the tenth day of their seventh month, as instituted by the Lord through Moses, the great typical Lawgiver. To many of them, known as the Reformed Jews, the day and its ceremonial of fastings, etc., will be merely an empty form, for these, in company with many world-wise Christians, have accepted the doctrine of evolution and the guidance of "higher critics" to the extent that they have lost faith in Moses and his teachings and are practically infidels, with barely "a form of godliness, denying its power" and in general rejecting the divine revelations of the holy scriptures. Other Jews there are, however, and other Christians, too, who still maintain their hold upon the Bible, who still recognize it as the divine message, voicing the wisdom that cometh from above. Such believers in the divine institutions—both Jews and Christians—are deeply interested in the great event which Jews will celebrate tomorrow, and whose lessons belong to both Jew and Christian. Let us examine some of them.

We take for our text the words of the great prophet Moses and the explanatory words of the great Jew, the apostle Paul: "The life of the flesh is in the blood; and I have given it to you upon the altar to make atonement for your souls; for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul." "Apart from the shedding of blood there is no remission" (of sins.)—Lev., xvii., 11; Heb., ix., 22.

As a consequence of the baneful influences of the evolution theory, which has more or less contaminated the minds of the whole civilized world, leading men to believe that imperfections and shortcomings which they realize in themselves are not the results of sin, but simply evidences that their evolution is not completed. Notwithstanding the tendency of such a theory to make mankind self-satisfied and to lead them to ignore, deny that they are sinners, that they need a savior, that their sins need atonement—nevertheless we see that the hearts of all mankind instinctively assent to the words of the apostle Paul: "All have sinned and come short." The realization that we have done those things which we ought not to have done, and have left undone those things which we ought to have done, and that we are fallen, imperfect creatures, needing divine assistance out of the horrible pit and miry clay of sin and death—these thoughts continually revert to the true-hearted and well-intentioned of our race. Such realize a standard of perfection far beyond their own attainment, and that standard is the divine one; and, however clearly or obscurely they know and appreciate the scriptural explanation of present sinful conditions and how they came about, they realize, nevertheless, that they are sinners, and that the perfect God could not have fellowship with them—could not recognize them, could not grant them eternal life on present conditions. Realizing this, such are looking away—to God—for the help which they are persuaded could come from no other source for forgiveness of sins and reconciliation and grace to help.

Blood of Atonement Necessary.

This class among the Jews look continually and longingly to Moses, their leader, and to the laws and ceremonial cleansing from sin which he, as the Lord's representative, introduced 3,400 years ago. It is this class of Jews who tomorrow will fast and pray and look to the Lord for forgiveness of sins and for reconciliation with him for the new year just beginning. They read in the Law of Moses that God appointed that the tenth day of the month (Jewish time) should be the day for the offering of the sacrifices for sin-atonement, on the basis of which divine favor would extend to them for another year. Realizing that the merit of their previous Atonement day expired with the ninth day of the seventh month, they were to spend the tenth day as sinners in sackcloth and ashes, bemoaning their sins, their wretchedness, their separation from the Lord and His just condemnation against them. Meantime, according to the divine arrangement, the high priest and his assistant prepared the sacrifices of atonement and offered them, and at the conclusion of the offering came forth in the close of the day to pronounce the divine blessing—remission of their sins for the new year and that they would be continued in the divine fellowship during the year.

The orthodox Jews tomorrow will go through this procedure, except the sacrificing, and at night will put away their sackcloth and fasting and begin to rejoice that they again have the Lord's favor and that it will rest with them for another year. But they make a serious mistake—they overlook an important item mentioned in our text: "It is the blood that maketh atonement for the soul." The Jews today offer no Atonement day sacrifices, because they cannot do so. Those sacrifices could be offered only under the special conditions pointed out in the Law of Moses.

(1) They must have the Ark of the Covenant either in a tabernacle or a temple, with the corresponding holy and most holy apartments. The Ark of the Covenant is gone; no Jew even knows its present place.

(2) If they had the ark it would be necessary that the Shekinah glory should rest upon the most holy apartment, as indicating the divine presence, to which the priest must approach with the blood of the sin offering to make atonement, sprinkling the mercy seat with the blood.

(3) The priest who would thus officiate must be of the family of Aaron, must be able to prove his lineage all the way down—otherwise he could not serve as high priest nor enter into the tabernacle nor make the sin-atonement. But among the Jews all records of the priestly families are lost. Not a Jew in the world today could serve as high priest to make atonement sacrifices; even if Israel had possession of the holy land, even if they had there a temple or tabernacle according to the prescribed arrangements of the law, even if they had the Ark of the Covenant in the holy place, and even if the Shekinah glory rested upon it, they would have no priest to make the atonement for their sins, to sprinkle the blood.

I do not mention these matters as something new on this subject, although as a matter of fact very few Christian people are aware to what extent all possibility of a revival of Judaism on Mosaic grounds has passed, and even the majority of the Jews are in doubt or in perplexity. It is not the custom of the rabbis to draw these matters to the attention of the common people—on the contrary, the whole matter is so far as possible avoided. They reason that discussion would bring out these facts, and they prefer not to arouse questionings on matters for which they have no reasonable solution.

Jesus the World's Sin-Bearer.

If once our Jewish friends could get rightly awake to the facts already narrated their peace would be gone; they would see that they have had no atonement day in the scriptural sense of the word for over 1,800 years, that they are in their sins and under the divine ban continually, that they have no atonement day and can have none, because they can have no blood of atonement for their sins, and hence their prayers and fastings and subsequent rejoicing after the manner of old are forms and ceremonies without real meaning. Would that the sincere and earnest of our Jewish friends could realize this need for blood atonement in order to a cancellation of sin, in order to a reconciliation to God.

As the apostle points out, the eyes of their understanding are blinded; they cannot see the truth on this subject yet. We are glad that he also points out (Rom. xi:25-32) that the time is coming when their blindness shall pass away and they shall be able to see the antitypical atonement day and to realize that the better sacrifice once for all canceled all sins and needs not to be repeated year by year. They will then see that God did not allow the typical priesthood to pass away until He began the establishment of the antitypical priesthood, of which Christ is the head, and the saints of this gospel age, gathered out from Jews and gentiles, are the "under priests," the "royal priesthood." Then they will see that the Lord's institutions at the hand of Moses were beautiful, elaborate and yearly repeated pictures illustrating higher and grander things—a release from sin and its death penalty secured not only for Jews but for the whole world of mankind—remission of sins, the rolling back of the death sentence resting upon the world for now 6,000 years and the bringing in of the everlasting blessings so long foretold by the Lord through Abraham and the prophets—to be accomplished by the spiritual seed of Abraham, the Christ, head and body—Jesus and His faithful saints gathered from the Jews and from the gentiles.

Let us glance for a moment at the picture of the day of atonement as portrayed in Leviticus (chaps. 9 and 16). On the tenth day of the seventh month the value of the previous atonement day, a year before, had ceased to have efficacy; the nation was in mourning for sins. The high priest offered first the bullock for himself and his house (chap 16:6)—not that our Lord Jesus needed to make a sacrifice for His sins, but that the high priest in this type represented not only the Lord Jesus, but also all of the "royal priesthood," the elect church, which is His body. (Eph. 1:23.) Those faithful, consecrated believers constituting "the body of Christ" need atonement for their sins, and this is illustrated in the type by the body of the priest covered with the white garments, while the head is bare. Thus our Lord needed no covering, because He was actually perfect, while all of His followers do need to be covered with the robe of Christ's righteousness.

But notice that the bullock was slain, was sacrificed not only for the body of the priest, but also for his house. Aaron was of the house of Levi, and the atonement sacrifice which he offered was efficacious for all who were of that house. The meaning of this in the antitype is that the merit of Christ's death is not only applicable to the saints, "members of His body," but also applicable to all the "household of faith." Thus not only the saints are reconciled by the precious blood of Christ, but also all sincere believers who will to do right and to follow the Lord's direction, but who do not come within the scriptural limitation of "overcomers."

"These two classes are variously referred to in the scriptures; the first is called the "little flock," and has the promise of joint heirship with Christ in His kingdom; the other class in revelation is called the reverse of a "little flock," namely, "a great multitude out of every kindred, nation and tongue," who, because not sufficiently zealous and faithful, will be obliged to "wash their robes and make them white in the blood of the Lamb," which is explained to mean that they must pass through great tribulation to attain perfection. Their ultimate attainment will not be a place in the throne, but, as described, a place before the throne. They will not have the crowns which the Lord has promised to the members of His body, His joint heirs, but they will have the palm branches representing victory, that they are victors or overcomers. The little flock, however, we are told, are "more than conquerors" or overcomers—they secure, the apostle Peter tells us, "an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom." The great company of the household of faith will serve before the throne, while the little flock, the "body," will share the Lord's glory, honor and immortality in the throne.

Typical vs. "Better Sacrifices."

The first sacrifice of the day of atonement was the bullock, and its blood was applied as stated to the "body of Christ," the antitypical priest, and to His house, the "household of faith." The bullock represented the Lord's human nature sacrificed on our behalf, while the priest represented him as the new creature, the mediator between God and man. His first work of mediation was to "offer up Himself." We cannot take time here to go into all the details of the matter. We already have this in printed form, and if any of you have not yet read on the subject, we proffer you a free copy of the pamphlet, which is entitled "Tabernacle Shadows of Better Sacrifices." A postal card will bring a copy to your address.

Passing over the subject hastily, without stopping to give the various scripture proofs, we remark that this part of the atonement day sacrifice was finished when our Lord Jesus died on Calvary. His resurrection on the third day represented His passing beyond the veil from the earthly to the spiritual condition; after His resurrection He was no longer the man Christ Jesus, but the new creature in nature and in power as well, "far above angels, principalities and powers." After miraculously manifesting Himself to His followers to qualify them to be His witnesses in the world, our Lord ascended upon high, there to appear in the presence of God on our behalf, there to do in reality what the Jewish high priest did typically when he sprinkled the blood of the sacrifice upon the mercy seat. Our Lord presented to the Father the evidences of His sacrificial death, meeting the demands of justice against mankind, and of that merit He applied a sufficiency, too, for all true believers of this gospel age—Himself, His body and His house," the household of faith.

None others are atoned for yet—only believers. Unbelievers, no matter on what score they are unbelievers, are as yet without atonement, without any actual share in the precious blood. True, we see in the scriptures that it is the divine plan that ultimately the same atonement shall extend to all the families of the earth through the great antitypical high priest, but it does not extend to all at the present time. It is limited to those who believe, and the number of those who believe is still further limited in various ways, largely through the influence of the god of this world, Satan, of whom the apostle declares, "The god of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not; lest the glorious light of God's goodness shining in the face of Jesus Christ should shine in their hearts."

But the types of the day of atonement show us that there is another sacrifice in addition to and following after the one already referred to. After the bullock had been sacrificed, after the priest had taken the blood into the Most Holy, after, by its blood, He had made atonement for the under priests, His "body," and for the entire "household of faith" of this gospel age, He next proceeded to sacrifice a goat, the record being that He did with the goat as He did with the bullock in all particulars. As we have already pointed out, the lean goat of sacrifice represents the Lord's faithful people of this gospel age—it represents those who follow in the footsteps of Jesus as members of His body, and are gladly laying down their lives in His service, in the service of the truth, in the service of the brethren, as colaborers with their Lord. The apostle frequently referred to the fact that those who would constitute the members of the body of Christ in glory must now walk in His footsteps of self-sacrifice, and, as the apostle Paul expresses it, must "fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ." (Col. 1:24.) They must be partakers in the better sacrifices if they would be sharers with their glorious Lord, the High Priest, the head of the body, in the coming millennial age of blessing.

The type represents that the High Priest Himself lays His hands upon this goat and sacrifices it; and so all of the Lord's faithful consecrated people realize that it is the hand of the Lord upon them, the power of the Lord working in them, that enables them as well as permits them to be sacrificers with Him, sharers in His sufferings in this present time, preparing them also to be sharers with Him in His glories in the future. This goat in the type represents the entire number of the Lord's faithful, self-sacrificing little flock throughout this gospel age. When we read that the blood of the goat was taken into the Most Holy and sprinkled on the mercy seat as the blood of the bullock had been sprinkled, but for a different purpose, it is specifically declared that the blood of the goat is applied for and on behalf of the cancellation of the sins of all the people.

In the type, after the Priest had offered the second of these sin offerings with the burnt offerings, He laid aside His linen garments, the garments of glory and beauty, representing the glory and honor of our Lord, the great King, and the church, his body, after the atonement sacrifices shall all be ended. The record shows that the next step in the program was for the High Priest to go with Moses to the altar and there lift up His hands and pronounce a blessing for forgiveness of sins upon the people, who at the time representatively were lying in the dust in sackcloth, bemoaning their sins and crying for mercy.

This typical picture represents, then, that as soon as the atonement day sacrifices shall all have been completed, as soon as Christ and the church shall have been glorified, the next thing in order will be for the glorified church as God's kingdom and representatives to begin the work of blessing the world by rolling away the curse of sin, degradation, superstition and death, including sickness and pain and sorrow, from the world of mankind, bringing in the reverse of all these, divine favor and blessing, knowledge and opportunity for a full return to harmony with God, and the full perfection of God-likeness originally represented in Adam, lost through disobedience, redeemed by the precious blood and to be restored in the "times of restititon of all things spoken by mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began."—Acts. iii:19-21.

The atonement day of the type finds its antitype in the gospel age, which, beginning with the consecration of our Lord Jesus when He was 30 years of age, will continue until the last member of the elect spiritual Israel, the royal priesthood, has completed its sacrifice and entered into glory with the High Priest of our profession, even Jesus. It has been a long day of sacrifice, and throughout it all the world in general has been in the attitude described by the apostle when he says: "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now—waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God"—waiting for the completion of the royal priesthood and their coming forth from the Most Holy, having finished the work of atonement, to confer upon all who will properly receive the divine favor, reconciliation, restitution, eternal life. It has been a long day of nearly nineteen centuries to the Lord's faithful ones, who have been glad to lay down their lives in the service of the King and for the brethren. The year of blessing and favor with God to the typical Israelite, following the day of atonement and based upon its work, represents the eternity of blessing that will result from the great atonement day sacrifices now in progress.

From this standpoint we can see the meaning of so many scriptures not previously appreciated—scriptures which speak of the Lord's true people as being priests, and which assure us that every priest must have something to offer. It explains also the apostle's frequent urging of believers, "I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies, living sacrifices, holy, acceptable to God, your reasonable secrive."—(Rom. xii:1.) It explains the Lord's declaration that all who would follow Him must, like Him, take up their cross and walk in His steps, be baptized with the same baptism that He was baptized with, and drink with Him of His cup. It shows us in what sense we "fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ." From this standpoint, then, that every member of the body of Christ is a priest and a sacrificer, the experiences of the present time are comprehensible, and the promise that all who thus suffer with Christ shall in due time reign with Him has the deeper and more reasonable signification. From this standpoint we see the force of the apostle's suggestion that we lay aside every weight, make every sacrifice and self-denial that is in our power, that we may run with patience the race set before us and attain to the glorious blessing which the Lord has in reservation for this "little flock," this royal priesthood, who, as overcomers, shall be made kings and priests unto God to reign on the earth—to bless all the families of the earth.

Aaronic and Melchizedek Priesthoods.

The royal priesthood has two types, one representing its experiences in this present life, the other representing the experiences of the future. Aaron and his sons typified the sacrificers of the present life under present conditions, while Melchizedek, both king and priest, represented or typified Christ and His associate under priests in the kingdom glory, ruling the world, judging the world, blessing the world—rewarding their good endeavors and punishing their shortcomings with a view to their complete deliverance out of present evil conditions into the perfection and blessings of the future, secured by the great atonement sacrifices of the present. Nothing that we have said, however, should be understood as in any sense or degree implying or even intimating that any part of the atonement work is necessarily dependent upon the church.

The scriptures everywhere assure us that the Lord's faithful sacrificing ones shall ultimately share a glorious part as associates with Christ in His kingdom, as members of the seed of Abraham, through whom all families of the earth shall be blessed; but nothing in any of these scriptural assurances nor elsewhere in any measure teach or imply that the value lay in our work, in any acrifice which we make. On the contrary, the scriptures everywhere declare clearly what our Master declared, saying, "Without Me ye can do nothing." The church's sacrifices would be of no value whatever were they not preceded by the Lord's sacrifice and the imputation to the church of the Lord's merit. This is shown in the type, because it is these who are made associates with Christ in the kingdom who were first themselves redeemed by His precious blood—represented in the fact that the "body" and "house" of Aaron were atoned for typically by the blood of the bullock.

The great lesson in all this is that which is expressed by the words of our text, which assure us that the blood represents the life and that without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins. If Christ had not died for our sins, we would yet be in our sins and the death penalty would be against us. Father Adam was sentenced to death because he was imperfect through his disobedience, and we all have shared his sentence. Man's life thus forfeited could never be restored to him—he could never have a future life except as he might be redeemed, and, as the scriptures hold forth everywhere uniformly, the redeeming of man's life must be by the life of another. And so, as we have seen in previous examinations of the matter, it was for this purpose that our Lord Jesus left the glory of the Father and was made flesh and dwelt amongst men—that He might give His unblemished life a ransom for ours, for the sins of the whole world, because it was His sacrifice and not in any degree our sacrifices which secured the release of the whole world from the death sentence in due time.

The types of the atonement day merely show the arrangement that God makes, whereby His faithful ones of this gospel age may come in and be participators of the sufferings of Christ, and thus be sharers also in the glories that shall follow—the millennial glories and opportunities for blessing others. So far as God and justice are concerned, the death of Christ might have been with equal propriety applied, not for the body and household of faith merely, but for all the people. In that event the church would have been left out of any special privilege either of sacrifice in the present time or participation in the glorious reign of the future, and the blessing would have come directly from the Father through the Son to all the people. It was a precious provision, then, on God's part to permit of a high calling to self-sacrifice, to walking in the footsteps of Jesus during this gospel age. As the scriptures declare, God is seeking out of the world a godly seed, a special class of sons whom He is adapting by His Holy Spirit to a change of nature, from human to divine—far above angels and every other name that is named, next to the Redeemer Himself.

"Elect" Must All Be Sacrificers.

Consider the apostle's words, "I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God (in the forgiveness of sins through faith in the precious blood) that ye present your bodies living sacrifices—acceptable to God and your reasonable service." These words show us distinctly that the only merit we possess in God's sight is that which has been imputed to us through the merit of Christ's sacrifice. Hence when we present our bodies living sacrifices, we recognize that they are not holy, acceptable to God on their own merit, but simply and only on the merit of Christ. Hence, also, whatever atonement may be made by these sacrifices is not to be considered as credited directly to the sacrificers, but through them credited to the one who redeemed them and who made their sacrificing possible and acceptable.

In other words, we wish to make clear that the entire merit of the atonement work is in the sacrifice of our Lord, and that we who are seeking to walk in His steps and to fill up that which is behind of His afflictions, and thus to be dead with Him that we may also live with Him, and to suffer with Him that we may also reign with Him, are not thereby doing anything which of itself would redeem our brother or give to God a ransom for Him; but that God having justified us through Christ, and having accepted us as members of the body of Christ, can and does accept our sacrifices as part of His sacrifice, as shown in the type, and can and does associate us with our Lord not only in the sufferings of this present time, but also in connection with the glories which shall follow.

We emphasize our text that without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins, and call attention to the fact that we are living in a day when an atonement by blood taught in the scriptures, in every book of the law, in every sacrifice of the law, in every book of the prophets, in every book of the New Testament, is being discredited. Nominal Christendom seems more and more to be drifting from blood atonement and from every thought of atonement. Hence it is expedient that the Lord's people read, mark and inwardly digest that this is the only arrangement for reconciliation with God set forth in His Book, that any other method or process of reconciliation is of human fabrication: attempts to "climb up some other way." Let us see to it that our faith is not resting upon the traditions of men, but upon the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever.

Let us study more and more clearly the philosophy of the great plan of salvation laid down in the scriptures and, seeing that philosophy, let us build every item of faith in full conformity with it. Thus we will have that faith structure which cannot be moved and to whose permanancy our Lord referred, that it is like a house founded upon a rock, and when the rain descended and the floods came and beat upon that house, it fell not because it was founded upon a rock. The floods of infidelity, evolution, higher criticism, false reasoning and misunderstanding are sweeping down and will soon engulf churchianity. The question is, who will be able to stand? We reply that only those will be able to withstand the shock who see clearly and distinctly the first principles of the doctrine of Christ. That man was created in God's image; that disobedience, sin, brought upon him the divine sentence of death; that Christ accomplished for our race the redemption, the forgiveness of sins, and thus secured for our race, for all who will avail themselves of it, ultimately a full opportunity of reconciliation to the Father.

Those who now see this may also see that in the divine plan the church of the first borns, the royal priesthood, is being selected during this gospel age or great atonement day, and that each one must of necessity be a sacrificer for the Lord and His cause and His brethren, and these with the Lord will shortly constitute the kingdom class exalted to power and great glory, the channels of divine favor, forgiveness, restitution, general uplift and eternal blessing to as many as will come into accord with the Lord and His righteousness. Whatever others may do, therefore, dear brethren and sisters, hold fast to the precious word and to the precious blood of Christ which it sets forth as the price of our redemption, and then in the language of the apostle let us conclude: "That if one died for all, then were all dead. And that we who live should henceforth live not unto ourselves, but unto Him who died for us." "We ought also to lay down our lives for the brethren."

River Business Suspended.

Low water has forced a complete suspension of business on the local rivers. The stage at Davis Island dam last night was 2 feet, a slight swell having taken place during Saturday night. The packet boats to Morgantown are still running, although under some difficulties, and the river men are waiting and watching the clouds.

Stomachs on Stilts.

The man who puts on stilts does not increase his actual stature by the breadth of a hair. He feels taller while he's on the stilts, and when he's off them he feels shorter than he ever felt. Stimulants are the stilts of the stomach. They make a man feel better for the time being, but he feels a great deal worse for them afterward.

The need of the man whose stomach is "weak" is not stimulation but strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery perfectly answers that need. It cures the diseases of the digestive and nutritive system which make the stomach "weak." It enables the digestion and assimilation of food, so that the body receives the nutrition on which depends its strength.

"I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for stomach trouble," writes Clarence Carnes, Esq., Taylorstown, Loudoun Co., Va. "It did me so much good that I didn't take any more. I can eat most anything now. I am so well pleased with it I hardly know how to thank you for your kind information. I tried a whole lot of things before I wrote to you. A gentleman told me of your medicine, and how it cured his wife. Thought I would try a bottle of it. Am now glad that I did, for I do not know what I should have done had it not been for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; You lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

The sluggish liver is made active by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

STOCK MARKET OPINIONS ARE GREATLY CONFUSED

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—At no time since the upward movement began in the stock market has opinion as to the immediate tendency of prices been so confused as during the past week. Brokers committed to the bull side were found issuing notes of warning to their clients, coupled with the opinion that some reaction might be expected. Bear traders, however, who tested the market, influenced by the same theory, retired discomforted in many instances. They figured that stocks should go lower, not only because of the recent advance, but also, in later days, in consequence of some adverse developments, the appearance of heavy realizing and distributing sales, the recourse to crazy stories and rumors circulated by manipulators to keep the ball in motion, and to the self-evident fact that the public has as yet little confidence and has not been drawn into the market by the tactics of the campaigners.

Whatever the future may have in store for Wall street, and many of the most cautious and conservative observers believe that that future is bright, signs were not wanting in the price movement and in the character of the week's trading which in the past have foreshadowed the culmination of an advancing movement. Such was the shifting of activity from the more meritorious properties and the declining tendency therein, to the highly specialized and doubtful issues, which were run up with startling rapidity. Signs of like import which have generally preceded reactions in the past have been the concentration of enormous manipulative purchases upon a specific stock, shifting from day to day as one feature after another is made prominent, and the nimble operator works out the preceding day's favorite. The outpouring of deal stories and rumors, the substitution of fiction and lies for facts and resort to other schemes to play upon public credulity, are all in line with the same thing, and have generally been forerunners of market changes.

It is believed even by persons confident of improving conditions in trade and industry that worse things could happen in Wall street than a reaction in prices. That the leading spirits in the present movement have not the confidence of the public and that their tactics do not commend themselves to outside interests is rather clearly shown by the meager participation in the market thus far by that element without which no market movement can succeed. This is not saying that the public will not come in, and it might even come in at high prices, but that is more doubtful now than a few years ago, for the memories of sad experiences in the collapse of values only a year or 18 months back can scarcely yet have been forgotten or the losses repaired. Stocks have had a very extensive advance. That some recovery was fully justified is nowhere denied, but prices cannot continuously advance. That theory, once held, has been but too recently exploded to find advocates now, and it cannot but be true that a sharp reaction with the public in the market and securities at a high level now would revive old memories and prove a serious setback to the genuine and healthy improvement which conservative interests confidently look for later on.

No one who came in contact during the week with the visiting delegates to the convention of the American Bankers' association could fail from being impressed by the cheerful optimism of the country's finances, when they discussed the topics of trade and industry, agricultural conditions or politics. It made practically no difference from what section the visitor hailed—and every section was adequately represented—the result was the same. Summarized, the bankers as a whole held that harvests taken together were abundant, and, assured that the money was plentiful and at the disposal of the merchant and the manufacturer, that general trade was showing slow but steady improvement and that the future of the country's commercial and industrial development was promising.

LAST PROPS KNOCKED FROM WHEAT MARKET

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Continuation of excellent weather conditions knocked the last props from under the wheat market today, precipitating prices 4c below yesterday's final quotations. The market closed practically at the lowest point of the day. Corn is off ⅝c. Oats are down ½c and provisions 5@7½c.

The opening in wheat was weak, the December option being down ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½c at at $1 13@1 12¾. May was off ⅜@½c to ⅝@⅞c at $1 14¼@1 14¼. The influences that caused the initial weakness were numerous. The most prominent factors, however, were lower cables, a big increase in shipments from Australia and continued fine weather throughout the wheat-growing sections of the United States and Canada. No news of poor threshing returns was in evidence, and with comparatively few buying orders there was apparently nothing for the market to do except decline. The oft-heralded free movement in the country northwest seemed to have begun in earnest, receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth today being much heavier than for the corresponding days last week and a year ago. As a result of the more liberal arrivals, the northwestern markets were weak. Lower prices in those markets added downward impetus to the declining prices here. From the start there was a lot of long wheat for sale and commission houses had numerous stop-loss orders to execute. A little demand from shorts was totally inadequate to stem the receding prices, the market becoming weaker as the session continued. During the final hour of trading the desire to sell became intense, and prices broke sharply. The low point on December was reached at $1 09. May sold off to $1 11. Closing quotations on December were at $1 09@1 09⅛. May closed at $1 11@1 11⅛.

Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 79,600 bushels. Primary receipts were 929,500 bushels, compared with 968,100 bushels a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 709 cars, against 332 cars last week and 550 cars a year ago.

Good maturing weather, lower cables, a continued heavy movement of the old crop and the break in wheat tell the story of a weak corn market. Private messages from the country regarding the condition of the new crop were decidedly bearish, fully 80 per cent of the crop being reported safe from damage by frost. There was liberal profit-taking throughout the entire session. Buying was largely by shorts. December opened ¼@⅜c lower at 50⅞c to 50½c, sold off to 50c, and closed at 50¼c. Local receipts were 524 cars, with 34 of contract grade.

Considering the weakness of wheat and corn the oats market held remarkably steady. There was only moderate profit-taking, while a fair demand was manifested the entire session. December opened ⅛@¼@⅜c lower at 32⅝@32¾c to 32½c, sold between 32½c and 32⅝c, and closed at 32⅝c. Local receipts were 173 cars.

The bulk of trading in provisions was in the way of changing from the October to the January delivery. Prices were a trifle lower in sympathy with the weakness of wheat and corn. At the close January pork and lard were each down 7½c at $12 67½ and $7 02½@7 05, respectively. Ribs were off 5c at $6 60@6 62½.

Estimated receipts for Monday: Wheat, 53 cars; corn, 535 cars; oats, 179 cars; hogs, 29,000 head.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN LOCAL MARKETS

Fruit Jars and Sugar in Big Demand—Flour Steadier—Provisions Change.

The heavy demand for fruit jars and sugar was the principal feature of the grocery market last week, the big fruit crop being responsible for the situation. Prices advanced on fruit jars and cans of all sizes, and an advance five points on sugar was announced Saturday, effective today. Glass manufacturers are unable to supply demands being made on them and the scarcity of canning vessels is said to be general over the country. Flour jumped up early in the week owing to the condition of the wheat market. However, speculators unloaded to make profits and flour prices did not go as high as expected. The feeling on both wheat and flour is strong, nevertheless, and an upward tendency on flour is looked for for some time yet. Navy beans were quoted lower during the week.

A reduction in quotations on hams and an advance on ribs announced Saturday, effective today, were features in the provision market. There was an upward tendency in cheese and the demand was reported satisfactory. Cream makes were advanced toward the close of the week. Limberger was quoted higher also. Butter ruled steady and eggs were marked up to 23 cents. This is the top price in Pittsburgh and the jobbers' trade is anxious to get good stock at 22 cents and 23 cents. There was particularly good call for heavy springers and heavy hens, and the market on fancy grades of poultry excelled that of the week before. A good nut market is expected next month and dealers are ordering heavily.

The season has arrived when comparatively few changes may be looked for in produce, particularly vegetables. Potatoes, onions and like supplies are ruling steady. Fruits are about the same way. Cantaloupes were reduced toward the end of the week and sold low Saturday. The supply of plums is still heavy. Peaches and pears are wanted and Bartletts were advanced in price. The yards were well stocked at the close, there being 45 cars of white and 10 cars of sweet potatoes on hand; there were 28 cars of apples, 11 cars of bananas, eight cars of cabbage, 31 cars of cantaloupes and eight cars of peaches left over. The demand for bananas was a feature in this line, and the stock was well cleaned up. Elderberries and huckleberries are still on the market and hold fairly steady. Watermelons are doing well and at no time this season has this market been crowded. Lima beans moved out well last week.

Timothy hay assumed a healthy tone. Receipts were not light, but the demand was such that the surplus stock which was left on track from the recent glut was well cleaned up. Everything points to a stronger market on hay now. Heavy clover mixed hay of good quality was in fair demand, while No. 1 clover was scarce and wanted. Wheat straw was in excellent demand. Oats and rye straw were easily placed at prices quoted. Middlings gained considerable strength during the week. Bran was dull. The market on good white oats took a firmer tone. Ear corn lost some strength owing to more liberal receipts, together with weather conditions. Trade was not as brisk as it might have been on shelled corn, but the market held about steady, offerings being equal to demand.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—Chicago won. Fighting to the last ounce for 17 innings, the Microbes finally triumphed over the Reds at the West Side park today, 2 to 1. This is the fourth straight victory. It was a great victory. Despite the threatening weather and the counter attraction on the South Side, more than 13,000 made the baseball pilgrimage.

The Cubs took the lead in the first inning, scoring one run as a result of singles by Barry and McCarthy and an error by Steinfeldt. In the sixth the Reds tied the score, Odwell singling and Steinfeldt tripling. Then began the battle royal. Inning after inning was played with a snap and precision that will mark the Sabbath day struggle as one of the greatest in the season's history.

Finally, in the seventeenth, the enthusiasm became unbounded. With but one out, the bases were filled with Microbes. The thousands began to root as they never had before. Barry came to bat. With charming abandon the utility man of the camp flied out to right. McCarthy was the next man up. He fouled the first ball over. The next one went wild. He fanned at the next. The next two were balls. "Three balls and two strikes," bawled the umpire, for the edification of the crowd. Eagerly the fans waited for the next ball, which was to decide the game, perhaps. Big "Tom" Walker realized that his last chance was at hand. He uncorked himself and McCarthy fouled again. Once more he slammed the ball toward the plate and McCarthy smashed a corking single out to left and the game was won. Score:

Dick Cooley Turns Actor.

Dick Cooley, the clever outfielder of the Boston National league baseball team, will make his appearance on the vaudeville stage after the close of the baseball season. He has joined hands with Harry Mayo, the well known song writer, and George Adams, and they will be known as "The Dick Cooley Trio." George M. Cohan, who is a great friend of Cooley's, has written a sketch entitled "A Ninth-inning Finish at the Polo Grounds."

SHADYSIDE IS TO INVADE EAST

Lawrenceville Preps. Want East Enders to Play Football on Their Field.

KISKI STARS ENTER LEHIGH

Shadyside academy will probably invade the eastern prep school football world this fall for the first time in its history. Negotiations are pending between Shadyside and the Lawrenceville Prep. school of Lawrenceville, N. J., for a game. Lawrenceville desires Shadyside to play there Wednesday, October 19, and the East Enders will probably accept. The coaches and Capt. Arch Williams are heartily in favor of meeting Lawrenceville, which is one of the very best prep. school elevens in the east.

Kerr Price, the Shadyside academy athlete, will enter the Ohio Northern university at Ada, O., soon. He is now on an automobile tour with an uncle, W. W. Price of Colorado Springs, formerly of Pittsburgh. W. W. Price made a trip from the west through the east and is returuing home. Kerr will go as far as St. Louis with him.

William Davies of the East End, who was captain of the Kiski basketball team and fullback on the eleven, leaves today to enter Lehigh university. George Parker, captain of the Kiski baseball team; Francis Caughey, captain of the football team; James Fair, second baseman, and William Lytle, center on the eleven, also enter Lehigh.

Fred Smith, Princeton '97, has been engaged to coach the Fordham football squad, Harry Allan Ely, the former coach, having resigned. The outlook for a good eleven is bright this year. Plunkett, Guthrie, Morgan and McLane are the only losses from last year's eleven.

A. L. Smith, the big fullback whom the University of Pennsylvania was depending on for the line bucking this year, may be kept out of the game on account of conditions in his studies. It is understood that under the recent system of study periods Smith is carrying thirteen conditions. This equals about three of the old conditions when the athletic rules were drawn up. Unless Smith passes two of these off and gets his scholastic standing straightened out he cannot represent the Red and Blue on the gridiron this fall.

BEAVER BEATS GREENWOOD IN THE DECIDING GAME

By winning from Greenwood yesterday the Beavers made it two straight wins in the three-game series for the championship of Allegheny. Blewett had his old team mates at his mercy, the only man who could connect with his twisters being Ike Hilliard. Score:

OPINIONS OF M'CHESNEY.

Chicago People Think Pittsburgh Boy Looks Good Enough for Big League.

Harry McChesney, the local boy who played his first game Saturday for Chicago against Cincinnati, made a big hit with the Windy City fans. The Chicago Inter-Ocean says of him:

By long odds the feature of the game was the work of McChesney, the Des Moines outfielder, whose release was recently purchased by the Chicago club. McChesney played right field, and if his exhibition of yesterday is a fair sample of his work, he will deliver the real goods. He is a young chap, built on the general lines of "Sandow" Mertes. He can hit, field, run and throw with the best of them, and he caught the crowd, which numbered over 7,000, from the very start. He made two hits, one of which was a beautiful triple to the left field fence; stole a base, made a great catch in right field, and a greater throw to the plate, which was unfortunately muffed by John Kling, and it was a line throw. McChesney's triple and Kling's infield hit brought in Chicago's first run in the fifth.

Ren Mulford of the Cincinnati Enquirer said: From a Chicago viewpoint the debut of Harry McChesney in right was the one episode of note. The Hawkeye started well. He began the Cubs' run-getting and stole a base, took care of his only chance afield and made a throw plateward that showed that his wing was not glass. McChesney was wildly cheered when he began the fifth by a hard drive over Odwell's head for three bases, and he scored on Kling's grounder to Huggins.

PIRATES UNABLE TO PLAY GAMES

PITTSBURGH TEAM GOES EAST

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—While hundreds were pouring into League park this afternoon and thousands more were preparing to see the last two contests of the season between the Pirates and the Cardinals, a double-header being scheduled, a heavy rain and wind storm suddenly came up, effectually ending all prospects of the games. Inside of a few minutes the grounds were in such a condition that playing was out of the question.

The keenest disappointment was felt. The Pirates were confident that they would repeat their victories of the two succeeding days and crawl up into second place again. The calling off of the games was a particularly hard blow to the management, for Pittsburgh is always a strong drawing card in St. Louis and the management had every prospect of enormous gate receipts. The crowd that would have witnessed the double-header would doubtless have been a record-breaker if the weather had been good.

There were many bets up on the results of the games. Of the nine games that Pittsburgh has played in St. Louis this year, five were won by the Smoky City aggregation, and the feeling is general that if the two games had been played today this figure would have been raised to seven.

The Pirates will not appear here again this season. Tonight the Pittsburgh team left for the east to begin its last trip in that section. Beginning on Tuesday a series of five games will be played with Brooklyn. There will be two double-headers. The St. Louis team will leave for Boston and will not be back home again until well into October.

STEEL TRADE HAS MANY WATCHERS

Condition of the Industry Such That Decisive Developments Are Expected Soon.

LEADING INTERESTS BUYING

Steel manufacturers, the steel trade generally, and the entire financial world are studying the condition of the greatest of manufacturing interests with more anxiety at present than for months past. The steel trade is in a condition which closely approaches a crisis. It is at the transition stage from pauper to prince, and if all goes well in the next month or two, the activity which marked the business at the beginning of the decade will again be evident.

Perhaps the most hopeful feature of the past week has been the large dealings in the securities of the United States Steel Corporation. The dealings were far more of a "buying" than of a "selling" character and the eastern transactions for the one week amounted to upwards of 1,100,000 shares of the common and preferred stocks. A similar activity on a smaller scale was evident here. Those who were watching the purchases closely ascribed the demand to the leading interests in the corporation, especially the Rockefeller interests. If the purchases are being made on orders from that source, it is considered satisfactory evidence that the "insiders" have knowledge of the future of the business which indicates to them that the steel stocks are a "buy." The purchases were not stopped by the advancing prices of the stocks, recording daily new high marks for the year.

Another indication of a bright future is the activity of the pig iron business. Nearly all of the best furnaces of the United States Steel Corporation have gone into blast, and some of the less economical ones are also being operated. Merchant furnaces throughout the Mahoning and Shenango valleys, which were idle for months, have resumed. Orders have been placed which are taking the southern furnaces out of the Pittsburgh market and prices show decided firmness.

Steel manufacturers are being visited daily here by a most unusual number of buyers. Queries by letter or over the long-distance telephone have been displaced in large measure within the past fortnight by personal visits to Pittsburgh. It is evident that the consumers of steel apprehend that they will do well to keep in instantaneous communication with the market. It is believed that the oft-mentioned "bottom" has been reached and that the new price lists, placed at a basis which more truly represents conditions of the general market, will hold.

It is admitted by many of the manufacturers that the advance of the market to the present stage had not been expected to take place until after the presidential election. Their only explanation for the market moving faster than the calculated course is that the outcome of the election has been discounted.

HERBERT'S ORCHESTRA IS EXPECTED TO DRAW WELL

Exposition Management Anticipates Large Crowds Will Attend Conductor's Concerts This Week.

Victor Herbert arrived in this city yesterday with his New York orchestra of 50 pieces, for a week's engagement at the exposition. Mr. Herbert expressed himself as delighted to be back again in Pittsburgh. The exposition management expects that Mr. Herbert's engagement will draw the largest attendance of the year, because of the personal regard felt for him by the people of Pittsburgh.

Paul Henneberg, also well known in Pittsburgh, has been made assistant conductor of the orchestra, although Mr. Herbert says that he will personally conduct at every Pittsburgh concert, unless some unforeseen accident prevents him doing so.

A number of social affairs have been arranged for Mr. Herbert during his stay here, and already numerous parties have spoken for reserved seats in Exposition music hall, indicating that society will be out in all its brilliancy to welcome the popular leader. ### RUSSIANS WERE CAUGHT.

Park Policeman Saw Them Stoning the Japanese Crab Apple Tree.

Paul Storach, Joseph Orosz and Michael Russocz, Russians, were arrested by Adolph Stoerkel, park police sergeant, in Schenley park yesterday. As Stoerkel was riding toward the nursery in the rear of the park he saw three men throwing stones and sticks into a Japanese crab apple tree. They seemed to be more intent upon damaging the tree than upon securing the fruit.

Stoerkel put spurs to his horse and surprised the Russians in their vandalism. They were arrested and locked up in the Oakland police station, charged with malicious mischief.

REVIEW OF WEEK'S OIL OPERATIONS FAILS TO SHOW MUCH OF INTEREST

Developments the past week in the lower southwest oil fields were uneventful. The usual number of wells were completed in West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio, but the discovery of new pools or extentions to the old had no part in development work on either side of the river.

Operators are anxious for new territory so as to be able to prepare for continuing work through the winter months. Outside of the deep sand districts the old fields have been thoroughly defined and unless some new territory is soon discovered there will be no opportunity to push work through the winter. Operators dislike wild-catting in the winter and the little success that has followed work of that character during the summer months will make it all the less desirable when the weather and roads get bad. There are only a few months at best when the roads in West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio are in a passable condition.

One of the best wells completed during the week was the South Penn Oil Company's test on the Lydick farm, located on Whetstone run, Marshall county. When drilled into the Gordon the well did not show for better than the late average of new wells in that county, but a shot helped and it produced 150 barrels the ensuing 24 hours. This test is in the Fish creek end of the Marshall county development and will encourage some new work. The past two months has seen a slight increase in development work in Marshall county and in the edge of Wetzel, adjoining. The various gas companies having pipe lines in that section have been rather energetic in starting new work. In nearly all of the deep sand districts the gas companies are quite active in development work. Without an exception they look to West Virginia for a supply to meet the winter's demand.

South of Littleton, Wetzel county, the late wells completed have come in light and the new production this district was expected to supply will be much less than indicated by the good producers completed several months ago. The formation is not regular and a small well or a duster may be found within a single location of a large producer. The Philadelphia Company and the South Penn Oil Company are the most active developers of this district. The last named is not starting any new work in the district. Good gassers have been found in that locality and will be an incentive for the Philadelphia Company to continue active operations.

Southwest of Mannington, Marion county, county, the South Penn company's good producer on the C. S. Pitzer farm, holding up at 130 barrels a day, has called out some new work. On the Pitzer and adjoining farms a half dozen new tests have been started and the work will be rushed to completion.

Near Burton, Wetzel county, where the Philadelphia Company got a good fourth sand producer on the Sarah Anderson farm two months ago, the new work started soon after is now nearing completion and will attract some attention. When first drilled in it was thought that the Anderson farm test had got its production in the fifth sand. Later it was agreed that it is fourth sand and this has made the development all the more speculative as to what it will amount to when developed.

KUROPATKIN'S TACTICS FINE.

Bank of River at Liao-Yang Presented Scene of Carnage Unparalleled in European Warfare.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Times correspondent with Gen. Kuroki in a dispatch dated Liao-Yang, September 7, and at the conclusion of a long account of the battle there, says in part:

"Gen. Kuroki's flank movement failed owing to the tactics of Gen. Kuropatkin, who trusted that half of his army would suffice to hold the Japanese south of the Taitse river. His forces were so strongly posted and he possessed such a secure line of retrat that the soundness of the course adopted must appeal to tacticians. They had very small reserve supplies at Liao-Yang, trusting to the railway for supplies. After the Russian retirement to the east bank of the river their position presented a scene of carnage unparalleled in European warfare."

In describing the crossing of the Tan river August 28 the correspondent at one point said: "It is impossible to refrain from remarking on the pusillanimous flight of the Russians from the advanced trenches. I heard a foreign attache say it made him ashamed for white men."

MUCH AMERICAN OIL IS GOING TO CHINA

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(Special.)—The demand for case oil in China is immense. It forms a great part of the cargoes of every steamship sent out by the regular lines. The British steamship Khabilia is at the north pier, Brooklyn, finishing a cargo of 100,000 cases. The probabilities are that much of this oil will find its way finaly to the Japanese ports from Shanghai.

CHAMPION EATER HAS COME TO TOWN

IS AN UNPROFITABLE BOARDER

Charles Johnson, colored, of Meadow Creek, W. Va., who is 20 years old and weighs about 300 pounds, came to this city 10 days ago, bringing with him an enormous appetite, to visit his uncle, George Johnson, of the rear of 2623 Forbes street. Johnson liked the sights of the city, but his uncle never served him enough to eat, and therein Charles had a grievance.

Saturday the uncle returned to his home with his wages, amounting to $18, which he turned over to his wife, Elizabeth. The nephew was present at the time. Later Uncle Johnson left the house and Nephew Johnson asked his aunt to give him $2 with which to get something to eat. The woman took pity on her nephew's hunger and gave him the money.

Johnson sought a restaurant and spent the $2. He got up from the table hungry. Gloomy because he had not sufficient funds to satisfy his appetite, he went back to his uncle's house. On his arrival there he found his aunt and uncle had gone away. He looked about for more to eat, but found nothing prepared. According to the story he told the police he then thought of the money he saw his aunt put away in the bureau drawer. He went upstairs and took the $16.

Charles at once made for a Water street restaurant. He ate and ate. Ham and eggs, bacon and eggs, pork chops, pies, doughnuts, peaches, pears and peanuts were consumed by him. His uncle and aunt returned to their home about 9 o'clock. They waited for the nephew to return. When he failed to put in an appearance they became suspicious and thought of the money in the bureau drawer. When they found it had been taken they went to the detective bureau and reported the case. Yesterday morning the case was placed in the hands of Detective George W. Cole.

The detective learned that Johnson had visited all the colored restaurants in the lower section of the city. One colored man who had seen Johnson eating during the night said to Detective Cole:

"George, that coon has been eatin' all night, and Gor-a-mighty how he does eat!"

The detective found Johnson coming out of a colored restaurant in Water street. His pockets were filled with doughnuts, peanuts and apples and he had a half of a pie in his hand. At the Central station Johnson was searched and 70 cents was found on him.

"Where is the balance of that $16?" asked the detective.

"I spent it for eatin'," answered Johnson.

Johnson was held as a suspicious person.
